Sale Of Junior Livestock Champions Nets $180,635

Winebark Donates Money To Scholarship Fund, Church Group

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The sale of Farm Show Junior Livestock Champions Thursday grossed $180,635 for 62 steers, 163 pigs, and 122 lambs.

While no records were set per se, for the second year in a row, a youth who has shown a grand champion Farm Show livestock animal has donated the majority of the price paid to benefit the Farm Show Youth Scholarship Fund.

Janine Winebark, 9, daughter of Kenneth and Janet Winebark, of Myerstown, showed the grand champion market hog in the junior, or youth, division of the state Farm Show. On Thursday, her grand champion was sold for $10,200 to Hatfield Quality Meats Co.

Winebark kept only the market price for her 257-pound Hampshire/Duroc crossbred swine, "Leah." That meant she kept $111, and announced that the remainder would go toward the Farm Show Scholarship Fund and to the Youth Ministry of Richland Church of the Brethren, where Janine is a member.

Normally, money paid for champion Farm Show animals and the other exhibited animals is used by the youth to save for education or to help them get started in a career.

However, in the past several years, individuals, and several groups of buyers, began to pay large amounts for certain animals, and, starting with Daryl Bomgardner, who happened to be among the six who received a $1,000 scholarship this year, some of the youth began donating amounts above what they thought they needed back to support organizations.

Bomgardner donated his to FFA and 4-H.

Last year, prior to the start of the sale of champions, it was announced that Mark Simmon, who showed the grand champion market swine, would donate anything he was paid above $5,000 toward a scholarship fund.

Several buyers worked together and paid $15,100. This year, prior to the sale of champions, six youth received scholarships primarily from the sale of Simmon's animal.

With Janine's contribution, approximately the same amount is to be added to the coffer this year to continue to scholarship.

Kenneth Winebark, who is also Lebanon County's Penn State Extension agent for all livestock, said that the decision to donate the money came out of a belief that it is the right thing to do.

"We did it because this program and the other program (the church youth ministry) the kids are in ... are programs that can really make a big difference.

"We've come to the conclusion that there are a lot of things in life a lot more important than money. Not that we're rich, but we are doing alright, and these two programs are important in our lives

Farm Show Booth Drawing Winner Named

Many farmers stopped at the Lancaster Farming booth at the Farm Show this week. Not everyone registered for our drawing for The Original Old Fashioned White Mountain ice cream freezer, but 1,600 of you did. Thanks! And the winner is Earl E. Breneman of Millersville in Lancaster County.

Governor Casey Greets Farm Show Crowd

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Sunday is traditionally the day the Pennsylvania governor tours the farm show and presides at the official opening ceremony. This year Robert P. Casey took the opportunity to make his first public appearance since resuming his post as governor after receiving a heart and liver transplant. While he left the annual tour to Lt. Gov. Mark Singel, Casey entered the large arena in a horse-drawn carriage and waved to the crowd before taking the stage to deliver his annual address.

"I always like to come to the farm show," Casey said, "because this is the real Pennsylvania, the ones behind the headlines, the real people of the nation."

The governor also released $463,000 to improve parking areas

Dave Slusser Named General Manager Of Pennsylvania DHIA

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The new general manager of the Pennsylvania DHIA, as the TV commercial says, "hit the ground running" on the first day on the job this week. Dave Slusser, among other things, attended the board of directors meeting, held staff reassurance meetings and attended member meetings in the field. This was done, not as one beating the air, but rather in the quiet, humble, self-assured way that in the past has given Dave the respect of the entire dairy industry. People just naturally look to Dave for leadership. And the strength of his integrity and first-hand knowledge of DHIA as a user of the service for 23 years in his family farm dairy operation in Crawford County is expected to begin immediately to heal the divisions in the association.

Dave Slusser, seated, became the new general manager of Pennsylvania DHIA this week. Frank Orner, president, made the announcement.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, January 12, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds varied, but slowed overall. Seller offerings were adequate to fully adequate, instances well balanced to tight. Live supplies were moderate. Weights were mixed in a full range. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 64 cents. Trade sentiment was no better than steady and generally cautious in several quarters. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts were no more than adequate. Drums and thighs cleared well at several plants. Most other items were fully adequate to ample for a lackluster buying interest.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, January 12, 1994

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to lower for the large sizes in the Northeast, and unchanged on the balance of prices. The market tone was cautiously steady to weak with mediums in the most stable position. Cartoned egg movement was mixed across the full range, and deliveries continued to be disrupted by snow and ice covered roads in the Northeast. Demand was best where features were a factor. Supplies of large were adequate to ample and available, while medium supplies were adequate to instances closely balances. Breaking stock prices were unchanged to lower, and offerings were fully adequate for the unaggressive and light demand. Live hen offerings were at least adequate for the moderate at best demand, and the undertone was no better than steady.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.

Wednesday, January 12, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY WHEAT PRICES TURNED STRONGER, WEDNESDAY, IN REACTION TO JORDAN'S SUBSTANTIAL U.S. WHEAT PURCHASE AND INDICATIONS CHINA MAY REBID FOR U.S. WHEAT AFTER ALL. TRADERS ANTICIPATE TODAY'S USDA CROP REPORTS. CORN PRICES WERE PRESSURED BY PROFIT TAKING ON THE BOARD AHEAD OF THE USDA FINAL 1993 CROP PRODUCTION REPORT. SOYBEAN PRICES GAINED SLIGHTLY ON FUND BUYING AND GOOD DEMAND FROM THE CRUSH EXPORT MARKETS, LIGHT FARMER SELLING AND BARGE MOVEMENT PROBLEMS DUE TO ICE ON RIVERS. WHEAT 1 TO 5 CENTS HIGHER AND UP TO 17 CENTS HIGHER IN MINNEAPOLIS. CORN 1 TO 2 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM 2 TO 4 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 1 TO 2 CENTS HIGHER. WINTER WHEAT SEEDINGS FOR 1994 ARE ESTIMATED AT 50.6 MILLION ACRES, DOWN 2 PERCENT FROM 1993, THE LOWEST SINCE 1988. STOCKS ARE REPORTED AT 1.59 BILLION BUSHELS, DOWN SLIGHTLY FROM DEC. 1, 1992. CHINA MAY STILL BE IN THE MARKET FOR U.S. WHEAT ADDED GOOD SUPPORT TO WHEAT PRICES. EXPORT DEMAND CONTINUED GOOD WITH JORDAN'S WHEAT ORDER. CORN PRODUCTION FOR 1993 IS AT 6.3 MILLION BUSHELS, DOWN 9 PERCENT FROM NOVEMBER 1, 1993 BUT DOWN 34 PERCENT FROM 1992'S CROP. STOCKS IN ALL POSIT- IONS ON DEC 1, 1993, TOTALED 5.94 BILLION BUSHELS, DOWN 25 PERCENT FROM 1992. PRICE LOSSES IN CORN WERE LIMITED, HOWEVER, ON REPORTS THE FRIGID WEATHER IN MIDWEST AREAS AND ICE WILL MAKE BARGE MOVEMENT ON RIVER ARTERIES DIFFICULT. SOYBEAN PRODUCTION IS REPORTED AT 1.8 MILLION BUSHELS, UNCHANGED FROM NOV 1, 1993 BUT BELOW 1992'S 2.2 PRODUCTION FIGURE. SOYBEANS STORED IN ALL POSITIONS ON DEC 1, 1993, TOTALED 1.55 BILLION BUSHELS, DOWN 15 PERCENT FROM DEC. 1, 1992. HIGHER BEAN PRICES REFLECTED INCREASED EXPORT INTEREST AND FUND BUYING ON THE BOARD. BARGE MOVEMENT AND ICE PROBLEMS ON MIDWEST RIVER SYSTEMS ALSO ADDED TO PRICE UPTURNS.

EXPORT NEWS: USDA ACCEPTED FOUR BIDS TO SELL 200,000 TONNES HARD RED WINTER WHEAT TO JORDAN UNDER EEP FOR FEB/MAY SHIPMENT. USDA ACCEPTED ONE BID TO SELL 5,250 TONNES SOYOIL TO TUNISIA UNDER EEP, FOR FEBRUARY SHIPMENT.

REAL BEEF - BETTER THAN EVER.™
Available exclusively from: Tendrleen CERTIFIED BEEF® pennfield feeds

Would you like to raise beef cattle in existing facilities?

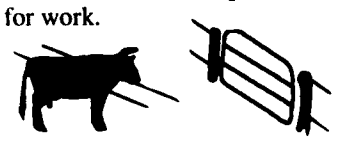
Dairy beef cattle perform well when you avoid extremes in temperature and moisture. A little planning and $300-$1,200 can turn many existing facilities into a protected, dry pen:
Maximum weight gain and minimal labor are the result.

Find a well drained location which lets steers find dry ground in any weather. An unheated, 3-sided machine shed or barn stalls converted to a pen are ideal.

Keep the draft off by covering any large holes with sheet metal or plywood. Allow steers to move freely with a double-wide outside entrance.

Give them 25-30 sq. ft. per head including water source and bulk feeder (if used). Best choice is feed and water close to shed/barn to encourage "all-weather eating."

Let steers eat with wide enough feeder or bunks. Their only job is to eat—don't make it hard for animals to punch in for work.



Make gate handy for truck access: Come marketing time, you'll be glad you did. With multiple pens, give each its own gate.

Raising a small group from bull calves shouldn't be a major effort—and that includes fixing up your facility.

Certified Beef™ is a low-investment, high-gain program to take cattle to market weight in 12 months. The Tend-R-Leen beef meets growing consumer demand for less fat, better value and great flavor.

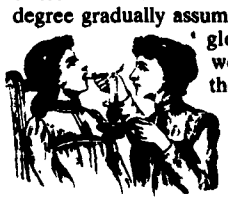
JANUARY 17-23, 1994

THIS WEEK WITH

NATIONAL HANDWRITING DAY, JAN. 23.

GRADUATION DAY

On January 23, 1849, Elizabeth Blackwell graduated at the head of her class and became the first woman in the U. S. to receive a medical degree. Elizabeth applied to twenty-nine schools before being accepted at Geneva College (later part of Syracuse University), and they admitted her only after polling the other students! After admission, her uphill battle continued as she was ostracized by students and the public, and she had to fight for permission to attend anatomy classes. As she later wrote, "The idea of winning a doctor's degree gradually assumed the aspect of a great moral struggle." It was a struggle Dr. Blackwell won not only for herself, but also for the dedicated women who followed.



The surest way not to fail is to determine to succeed.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EAR-WISE

Can automobiles get any more fuel efficient without sacrificing safety and affordability? Maybe today's cars can't, but that doesn't have to be true of tomorrow's cars. GM and others are working on an ultralight hybrid vehicle utilizing a molded body of composite materials (like those found in some golf clubs and Stealth bombers) and powered by a 10 to 20 horsepower hybrid electric drive. These supercars will be ultraefficient and ultrasafe but also comfortable and beautiful.

HERB-MUSTARD CHICKEN BREASTS

2 whole chicken breasts, halved
¼ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons grated onion
2 teaspoons dried parsley
½ teaspoon savory

Place chicken in baking pan; brush with oil. Bake at 425° F for 30 minutes or until browned. Reduce heat to 300° F, brush chicken with more oil, and bake 15 minutes more. Combine remaining oil with other ingredients and pour over chicken. Bake 20 minutes, basting often, until tender.

Makes 4 servings.

OPINION

American Farmer Distributes Lord's Blessings

Each evening 250 million families sit down to dine on an evening meal. Many families give thanks to the Lord for blessing them with the food placed before them. These evening dinners accommodate each of the four food groups: meat, grain, dairy, fruits and vegetables. The Lord distributes this bounteous food to us through the American farmer.

The American farmer comprises 1.8 percent of our population and they are capable of producing healthful, abundant food. Through my personal involvement with agriculture I believe it is a privilege to promote this industry.

My justification for promoting agriculture generates from agriculture's multiple benefits. America is so dependent upon our nation's number one industry that without agriculture it is doubtful we would be the world's superpower today. Agriculture provides us the fortitude and power that make our country the primary food producing country in the world. The survival of the United States is based mainly on agriculture. The economic fuels that power our government and nutritional energy that feed the people are derived from this industry.

Our free enterprise farmers show a great respect for the environment. They are able to produce an abundance of food due to environmentally safe agricultural practices that enhance the soil's vitality. With new farming practices, technology, and preservation of nutrients, the American farmer continues a trend of producing more food, on less land.

The United States has never suffered national famine because of our immense capability to produce ample quantities of food. We see this when we consider that one farmer feeds 114 people. We may not appreciate the significant importance of agriculture, unless we experience its failure and the dastardly effect it would have on our people. America as we know it today, would not be possible if it wasn't for our success in agriculture.

The dairy industry in Pennsylvania is an example of agriculture's capability to produce healthful, abundant food. The dairy farmer, through the use of the dairy cow, takes non-edible forages and by-products and transforms them into edible nutritious dairy products. These include delicious products such as, ice cream, cheese, yogurt and milk. — This is a guest editorial by Amy VanBlarcom, Bradford County Dairy Princess

To Cull For Increased Profits

Dairy farmers need to upgrade their herds continually to remain competitive.

Determining which cows to cull and when is no easy decision. One way to help simplify this decision is to list your criteria for culling. This could be in columnar form on a sheet of paper. The criteria could include cows open more than 150 days and not bred, cows with four or more breeding services, cows milking less than 30 pounds, cows with somatic cell counts more than 400,000 and severely infected more than three times, cows with feet and leg problems, etc. On the same sheet of paper, list all cows that meet any of your criteria. Cows that meet several criteria are strong candidates for culling.

To Study Peak Milk Production

DHIA rolling herd averages and cows' lactation records are nice to look at. They show what has happened in the past, but they do not reflect where the herd is heading.

This is important for managers to monitor. Peak milk production and persistency of production may be a good indicator of how much milk a cow will produce and how profitable she might be.

Peak milk production times 225-250 is an estimate of how much milk a first calf heifer will produce in 305 days. For older cows, multiply peak milk production by 200-225.

About half of a cow's profit per lactation is made in the first 100 days in milk. Thus, persistency of production is also important. Heifers' milk production should not drop more than 5 percent per month, whereas older cows should not drop more than 8 percent per month.

To Reduce Nutrients In Manure

One area researchers have been studying to reduce nutrients in manure is animal diets. We know if we reduce protein and phosphorus levels in diets, we reduce nitrogen and phosphorus.

A recent French experiment confirmed this in swine. They found excessive phosphorus supplementation in swine diets has little impact on pig performance and leads to increased concentration in the manure. They also found that high quality sources of protein and lysine-HCL not only lowered dietary protein but also reduced nitrogen output in the manure and ammonia emissions in confinement buildings.

Based on this research, a finishing operation that produces 5,000 hogs per year would reduce their phosphorus manure production by 4,000 pounds and their nitrogen production by 7,000 pounds.

We need more research to identify minimum levels of protein and phosphorus that may be feed to animals. By doing so, we increase feed efficiency while reducing nutrients in the manure. Remember, percent protein is calculated from the nitrogen content of the feed.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

YOUR REWARD: NOW OR LATER?

January 16, 1994

Background Scripture:
Luke 6:17-36
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 5:3-12, 38-48; 7-12, 24-27; 8:1.4

Last spring I had to make a decision concerning my pension payments from the United Methodist Church: I could choose to receive an immediate lump sum cash payment or I could opt for a small monthly payment for the rest of my life.

I was tempted to take the lump sum cash because there were a number of projects concerning our home that we could have pursued. But, we readily realized that postponing the benefits to a later time would be much more prudent.

Actually, the choice we made concerning my pension is the same kind of choices most of us have to make in life: whether to take immediate gratification or postpone it to a later time when the need for gratification will be significantly greater.

NOW OR LATER?

And really, isn't that what the gospel teaches us about life? The true reward comes later — "Blessed are you that hunger now, for you shall be satisfied, blessed are you that weep now, for you shall laugh" (Luke 6:21). Weep and hunger now; laugh and be filled later. And it works the other way, too: "But woe to you that are rich, for you have received your consolation. Woe to you that are full now, for you shall hunger. Woe to you that laugh now, for you shall mourn and weep" (6:24, 25).

Jesus is not saying there's anything wrong with being well-fed and of good cheer here and now, but that the satisfactions in the here and now are nothing compared to those we will experience in the kingdom of God. If you make material pleasures your aim in life, you may get them, but that is all you will get — "For you have received your consolation." Material satisfactions do not last; neither do material deprivations. What lasts are the spiritual blessings of the kingdom. So, if you devote most of your life to obtaining the things that the world values, you will miss out on the only rewards that endure into eternity.

BLESSINGS & WOES

William Barclay says that these beatitudes and woes are like "a series of bombshells". If that surprises you, it is probably because, like so many of us, you have become so familiar with them that you no longer think about how revolutionary they are. To put them in perspective, think of how they would sound, not in church on Sunday morning, but from the White House, the Wall Street Journal or an advertising firm on Madison Avenue. These beatitudes and woes are not the words nor the principles by which our society steers. In fact, they are so alien to the foundations of it that they are either rejected outright or relegated to the churches where no one really pays attention to them. For, if we really paid attention to them I'm not sure the Christian churches could safely and comfortably be accommodated to our society. Christians "get along" in America today, because we "go along" with a society whose norms and values are seriously in conflict with those of Jesus of Nazareth.

The question of "now or later?" also underlines Jesus' teaching on love. The world's concept of love is almost totally different from what we find in the gospels. Worldly love tends to be the sentiment that we are willing to give in return for the sentiment we get in return. If you think of only the here and now, it will be virtually impossible to love the person who strikes you on the cheek, takes away your cloak, or steals your possessions. If you want an immediate return on your investment of love, forget it! — "For even sinners love those who love them" (6:32b).

But, if you can focus on the long run instead of the short run, that is true love: "...lend expecting nothing in return" (shortrun) "and your reward will be great," (long run) "and you will be sons of the Most High" (eternity).

Where would tobacco prices be if there was no auction? Your tobacco buyers that are buying on the farm are saying whatever auction price is. Again, it's a proven fact - with a full warehouse it is easier to get a higher price. Please think twice before selling on the farm.

Ridge Unveils Agriculture Platform

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Maybe gubernatorial candidates in the early history of Pennsylvania developed an agricultural policy platform to run on, but no one has done it in recent memory. No one, that is, until this week at a press conference at the Farm Show where Republican candidate Tom Ridge introduced his "A Plan For Pennsylvania Agriculture: Strengthening Our Greatest Resource."

Ridge called for the strengthening of the state's number one industry and making fundamental changes in the way government works with farmers and food processors. "I would like to build on the traditions that are in the farm community," Ridge said. "I want Pennsylvania to not only feature farming for the one week of the Farm Show, but I want us to feature farming 52 weeks out of the year.

"Farmers contribute $40 billion worth of goods, services and wages in Pennsylvania, and it ought to be the business of government in Pennsylvania to help you do business. A productive agriculture is good business for all of Pennsylvania."

Ridge listed five major points to his plan. They are: develop a PDA that knows agriculture; overhaul DER to make it user friendly; put new emphasis on marketing; develop an export- driven economy; and commit to research and development in agriculture.

"You have struggled like every other business in this state under the burden of high taxes and over-regulation. Your problems are compounded by dealing with individuals in state government who seem to have little or no understanding of the day-to-day decisions and challenges that you face," Ridge said.

"Today, I am laying before you my plan to fight back against the high-tax, no-growth policies that are impeding your ability to compete like every other business. This plan reflects my commitment to less government intrusion, more common sense governing and helping Pennsylvania's agricultural community reach its fullest potential."

"In a Ridge Administration, I will put together a Department of Agriculture with men and women who know agriculture and who understand that the strength of Pennsylvania's economy is only as great as the strength of its agricultural industry."

"My new Department of Environmental Protection will work with you in partnership. I am going to put an end to months of delays for permits and insist that law-abiding individuals are treated as such."

Ridge reiterated his call for overhauling the Department of Environmental Resources to make it "a partner of farmers rather than a prosecutor."

"We can protect the environment in a way that does not bring your ability to compete to a halt," Ridge continued, "Under my Administration, we will."

In addition, "A Plan for Pennsylvania Agriculture" calls for bolstering the efforts of the Department of Agriculture to identify new markets and conduct research into developing state-of-the-art products to meet changing market-conditions and regulations.

Citing the fact that the state's number one industry makes up a small percentage of the state's exports, Ridge called for doubling the amount of farm and farm factory products when he is Governor. Ridge's already-released "Keystone Export Strategy" includes the appointment of agricultural representatives to serve on the Governor's Export Task Force. In addition, Ridge said he believes that trade missions abroad to promote Pennsylvania products are important, as are reverse trade missions which would bring heads of state and dignitaries here to see first-hand Pennsylvania products.

Ridge was introduced this morning by retired State Representative, Samuel Hayes, who has been a leader in the agricultural community. Hayes pointed out Ridge's broad range of experience in dealing with farming concerns, including his efforts to bring balance to the nation's federal wetlands laws, secure drought relief assistance and ensure a fair market value for milk and dairy products.

Butter Sculpture Promotes 'Tackle Your Thirst With Milk'

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The fourth annual butter sculpture at the Pennsylvania Farm Show featured two football players, one from Penn State University and the other from the University of Tennessee. The sculpture follows the theme "Tackle Your Thirst With Milk."

At the first official function of the 78th Pennsylvania Farm Show. Boyd Wolff, PA Secretary of Agriculture said, "This sculpture is a creative way to call attention to Pennsylvania's great dairy industry. I have to commend the dairy farmers because they had the foresight to know that Penn State was going to win the Florida Citrus Bowl."

The sculpture was created by Raymond Mackintosh and sponsored by Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners — the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid East UDIA/F.O. 36 Advertising Agency, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

"This year Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners offer a tribute to football," said Betsy Dupuis, communications director with the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. "Penn State wide receiver Bobby Engram is being tackled by an unidentified Tennessee player. Engram was the game's most valuable player and a big part of the Nittany Lion's win."

"We selected football because of Pennsylvania's rich tradition in football. We have nationally ranked high school and college football programs. And, the first professional football game was played in 1892, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, so we're just a year behind in our anniversary celebration," added Dupuis.

Mackintosh, from Ontario, Canada, used approximately 760 pounds of butter in the sculpture. He spent an average of 10 hours per day working on the sculpture for a total of four days.

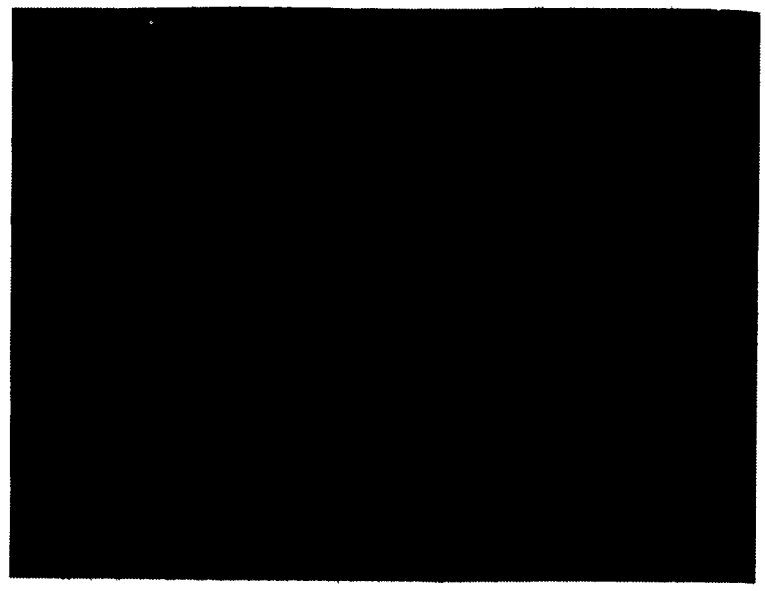
"Butter sculpting takes special experience," Mackintosh said in an earlier interview. "You need to know the material, what it will and will not do. Butter is different from other mediums and must be carefully supported. During the sculpting process, I must use a special wooden paddle and wire tools to create the features.

"This sculpture was very challenging. It was difficult to design due to the size of the cabinet. I know that in this case the figures had to be on the ground and that one would have to be poised on top of the other. The creation of the metal framework was critical for the structure," added Mackintosh.

Butter for the sculpture was donated by Eastern Milk Producers. It came. from the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's Holly Milk Plant, in Carlisle. Eastern's 1,200 Pennsylvania members provide milk for this plant which produces butter and dry powder dairy products.

"We are delighted to be a part of the 78th Annual Farm Show," Tony Schlesier, Eastern's Manager of Cooperative Relations said during opening ceremonies. "Our farmers are very proud to have donated this butter and to be a part of the Farm Show. Eastern has more members in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania than in any other state."

The sculpture will be on display in the McClay Street Lobby throughout the Farm Show. A video, created by Eastern Milk Producers, will also be on display to explain the entire sculpting process. Following the Farm Show, all of the butter will be donated to area soup kitchens.



Tackle your thirst with milk.

Junior Livestock Sale toward scholarships. It is intended to strengthen the youth program at Farm Show by rewarding 4-H and FFA members who are excelling in 4-H and FFA programs.

"Looking at the caliber of the 41 applicants, we have really seen some outstannding youth making a tremendous impact in their communities," said Ken Winebark, chairman of the Scholarship Committee and a director of the year-old Farm Show Scholarship Foundation. "We can make a strong impact in agriculture in the future with good leaders.

"We hope to strengthen the financial support for the Farm Show Foundation through memberships and the sale of animals this year so we'll be able to offer more scholarships to more students in the future," he added.

Receiving a scholarship award was Daryl Jay Bomgardner, son of Charlesl & Marlene Bomgardner of Annville. Daryl graduated from Annville Cleona High School, where he was active in the National Honor Society, basketball, track and baseball. He is currently a junior at Penn State majoring in dairy and animal science.

Four years ago Daryl exhibited the grand champion market hog and donated $3,000 of his proceeds back to the 4-H and FFA. He's been a Farm Show exhibitor in swine and beef for nine years as a member of 4-H and FFA.

"Raising and exhibiting livestock projects has provided me with various experiences and benefits," Daryl said. "It has provided me with lifelong friendships, responsibilities, a hard work ethic, knowledge and financial support."

Amysue Eshelman, daughter of Larry and Susan Eshelman of Sinking Spring, also received a scholarship.

Amysue is a graduate of Govenor Mifflin High School where she was an honor student and is currently a sophomore at Penn State University majoring in dairy and animal science.

She is a member of the Block and Bridle Club, Gougleresville Grange, Berks Cattlemans Association and was the 1992 Pennsylvania Wool Queen. Amysue has exhibited lambs, hogs and steers at the Farm Show since 1984 and won the shepherd's contest in 1992. She has received numerous awards and held a variety of offices during her 10 years in 4-H.

"Four-H activities have provided the tools for me to learn important social, professional and work ethic skills that are so important in being a productive and effective member of the agricultural socielty," Amysue said.

Kimberly Ann Frantz, daughter of Tom and Karen Frantz of Seven Valleys, is a graduate of Dallastown Area High School where she was active in field hockey and is now a freshman at Millersville University, majoring in biology.

She has exhibited several champions and reserve champions at the Farm Show, including the champion Duroc market hog in 1991 and the Duroc bred gilt in 1989, and has been involved with the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council.

"I like helping younger 4-H membelrs, watching their faces light up as they receive a blue ribbon," Kimberly said, "proving how important 4-H is to America and its youth. Despite any sharp turns which my future may take, the memories and wonderful friendships which I have made will make it impossible for me to ever leave 4-HY and livestock."

Brian Kreider, son of Richard and Carol Kreider of Lebanon, graduated from Cedar Crest High School and is now a sophomore at Penn State majoring in agronomy.

Brian has been active for 10

and the hardstand around the Farm Show complex. Casey noted that the planned improvements are in addition to the $10 million recently invested in the facility, including new heating, lighting, sound system and roof.

Gov. Casey said that because farm families and farm businesses are so important to Pennsylvania, the state has been pitching in to help Pennsylvania agriculture. "Our nationally-acclaimed Farmland Preservation Program, launched in 1989, now permanently protects 381 farms in 25 counties," he said. "Forty-eight thousand acres of prime farmland have been permanently saved for agricultral use. So far, the Commonwealth has put $85 million into saving farm land.

The governor said the design of the new $6.7 million animal health laboratory is well under way, and a contract for its construction across the street from the Farm Show complex is expected to be awarded this year.

"Investing in agriculture has paid great dividends for the state," Casey said. "Exports from Pennsylvania have more than doubled since 1987; last year they increased by 15 percent. Our aggressive agricultural product marketing program has increased the value of agricultural exports by nearly 90 percent since 1987.

For Lt. Gov. Singel, the annual tour through the exhibition buildings and the food court became an opportunity for him and his son Jonathan, age nine, to enjoy the show. From milking cows to riding tractors and eating farm foods, the father/son team provided many photo opportunities for the press.

At the Farm Show banquet, Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary, presented the agribusiness awards. Three companies received recognition for their contributions toward the development and expansion of Pennsylvania agribusiness.

Lt. Gov. Mark Singel and son Jonathan pose in the tractor cab.

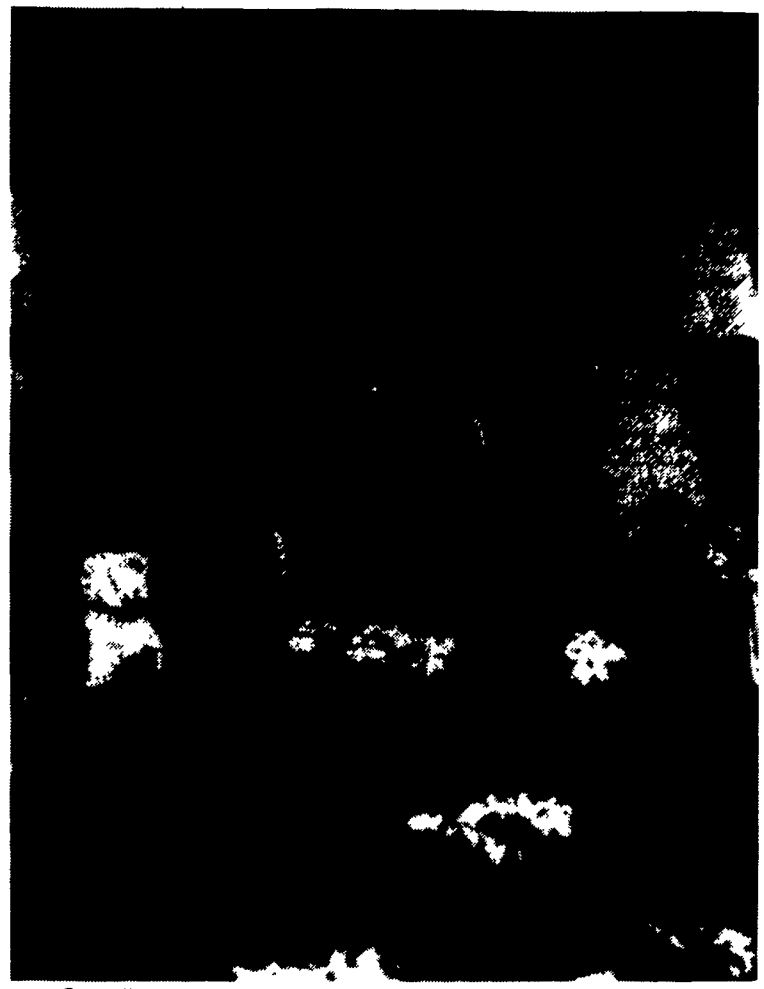
The Brown Adobe, Knauss Snack Food Company, and Moyer Packing Company received their awards from the State Department of Agriculture Saturday night.

Homemade salsa has grown into an export business for The Brown Adobe in Phoenixville, winner in the small company division. Since founding the Brown Adobe as a sideline business while in graduate school five years ago, Julienne Brown now sells a wide variety of great New Mexican foods in quaint earth tone packages to upscale food specialty stores.

An independent selection committee picked two winners in the large company division.

Although launching a new meat snack operation in the middle of a recession didn't make good business sense, Knauss Snack Food Company of Quakertown did just that in 1991. Using the integrity and good will of their fourth generation dried beef company, they now manufacture, sell and distribute a complete line of meat snacks like beef sticks, beef jerky, pickled sausage, and pickled eggs.

Moyer Packing Company or MOPAC of Souderton is the largest beef slaughterer and fabricator in the East and is a major renderer of animal by-products. From their facilities in eastern Pennsylvania and southern Delaware, they ship boxed beef, hides, and rendered products as far away as Asia. From a family business started in 1877, this company now employs more than 1,200 people in its numerous facilities.



Gov. Robert Casey presents opening remarks to the Pennsylvania Farm Show crowd Sunday morning in the large arena.

Pennsylvania ranks fourth nationally in the United States in the number of food processors with 2,300.

Wolff said the Farm Show is an excellent opportunity for our city cousins to gain appreciation for the hard work and tender loving care that goes into producing our state's wholesome food supply. "I always feel a special appreciation for our food at this time of year," Wolff said, "especially when you read about and see pictures of the many people without adequate food supply.

"Despite the relief, many people think with their new freedoms, their lives are still threatned by one simple thought: getting enough to eat. Most Americans have been freed from that burden for decades. We have the highest standard of living in the world, and one component of that standard is our safe, abundant, inexpensive food supply.

"Only 10 percent of our disposable income is spent for food, less than any other country in the world. We should all count our blessings and give thanks to the people in this nation who give dedication and hard work that allows us to take our food and fiber for granted."

Lt. Gov. Mark Singel tries a hand at milking a cow with encouragement from son Jonathan and Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary.

Landis Bros. Receives Super Service Award

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—Landis Bros., Inc., the John Deere dealership, has won the national company's Super Service Award again for the fourth year in a row. The announcement of the award was made at the open house in the Farm and Home Center Thursday. Approximatly 400 customers of Landis Bros. attended the all day affair that included lunch.

According to Jerry Thomas, John Deere area sales representative, the award is not easy to achieve. It's based on criteria set up for all dealers. The award is based on product promotion, advertising, and display, service training and calls to farms. Also, parts on hand and ordering procedures figure in on the award too.

"We want to build a better dealership so that when you need a part or service it's there," Thomas said. "And we are proud that Landis Bros. has won this award again.

Dairy Fun Night Brings Farm Show Delight

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's dairy industry was in the spotlight at the PA Farm Show's "Dairy Fun Night," held Tuesday evening.

Crowds stormed the small arena of the Farm Show Complex to witness a variety of interesting activities from ice cream taking to cow-pie dodging. The events were an amusing tribute to the commonwealth's number one agricultural industry.

Ice cream churners opened the evening by creating their own homemade ice cream. Contest judges Phiul, Keeney Jr., from Hershey Creamery, and Tim Burns and Sue Campbell from WNNK-FM, Harrisburg, sampled the recipes and selected three. Elsie Smith, from Roaring Spring, Blair County, retained her title, winning first place and $300 for her "Rocky Road" ice cream. Former champions Jim and Faye Reisinger from Loysville, Perry County, and John Hess, from Manheim, Lancaster County, received second, $150, and third place, $125, respectively.

The "Dairy Obstacle Contest" followed with teams stacking bales, dodging cow-pies, and bottling fresh milk in a timed competition that pitted strength against dexterity.

Eight hay bales had to be neatly stacked in a short period of time, while "pudding-like" cow-pies demanded skipping skill to miss the sticky mixtures.

The milk bottling required skill and patience in pouring milk from a large milk can into small bottles.

Judges Peggy Wolff, wife of Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff, and Amy Mearkle and Marci Harnish, the state's alternate dairy princess selected the winners.

A team from Greenwood FFA, composed of Matt Byers, Chris Seiber, and Tara Kerr, took the top prize of $75 in the 13-19 age division of the obstacle contest. The second place team, Armstrong 4-H comprised of Matt Ewing, Ben McDivitt, and John Walker, took home a $50 cash prize. In the 19 plus category, the Armstrong 4-H leaders - Jeff Burke, Mark Ewing, and Diane Ewing had the quickest time, while the Rader team- Harold Rader Jr., John Kennedy, and Barabra Rader from Connoquenessing, Butler County - took the second prize.

Contestants do highstepping, clean-stepping and quickstepping to avoid cow patties during a portion of the Farm Show Dairy Fun Night Obstacle Course.

While the "Obstacle Contest" continued, Chris Fickes, the evening's Master of Ceremonies, announced that "it was time to play the feud," "Dairy Feud" that is.

This was an event that required knowledge of the dairy industry and dairy products. Questions were based upon responses given by 100 people - dairy farmers or consumers. State Rep. Bill Lloyd, from Somerset County, and his team - Rep. Daniel Surra, Rep. Ruth Rudy, and Pat Carone, won the "Feud" and the bonus award.

They competed against a team captained by Rep. Arthur Hershey. Hershey's team included Rep. John Gordner, from Columbia County, Rep. Edward Krebs, and Rep. Paul Semmel.

Jennifer Grimes, the state Dairy Princess and the "Fun Night's" Mistress of Ceremonies, followed this event with the "Milk Mustache Contest."

Over 15 youngsters entered the arena to participate in this special activity. Each took a glass of milk and created their best milk mustache. Patrick Jenkins, from Hummelstown, was the selected winner by judges Tod Jeffers and Nancy Ryan form WWKL-FM, Harrisburg. Jerica Fetzer, from Elsie Smith is the returning winner of the homemade ice cream making contest at the state Farm Show Dairy Fun Night. She also won this past year at Ag Progress Days. Her mother never wrote down a recipe, but said to use one tablespoon of cornstarch and one egg per quart of ice cream, Smith said.

Sherwood Farms Takes Supreme Draft Horse At Farm Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — It was a day for the young horses to shine as Sherwood Farms, a two-farm, 150-acre operation run by Donald Sherwood and Gary and Brandon Groves, of Tunkhannock, showed the supreme draft horse at the state Farm Show last Saturday, taking home their first grand and supreme championship title.

While Windermere Farms out of Spring Mills, and Orndorff's Belgians, out of Waynesburg, two seemingly perennial winners at the Farm Show, and a number of other regular exhibitors faired well, the Sherwoods, relative newcomers to the Farm Show draft horse competitions, showed their young mare, a foal at last year's Farm Show, to place first among the top mare's and stallions of each of the three breed divisions.

Born April 1992, SGF Dodie Marie, a Belgian was ranked by judge Crae Eller, from Arcadia, Indiana, over her half-brother, the top Belgian stallion, shown by Orndorff's Belgians.

In fact, it was Orndorff's multi-grand champion of the Farm Show Belgian stallion, Orndorff's Congolaise Supreme, who sired both the grand champion Belgians and the reserve champion Belgian.

Marie was junior champion and defeated Orndorff's senior champion mare for the grand champion title. Sherwood Farms also showed the reserve senior champion mare.

According to Donald Sherwood, his interest in horses stems back to his late uncle Donald L. Williams, "Who was quite a horseman," he said. "I didn't grow up on a farm, still we have two generations of horsemen."

His uncle, on his mother's side, raised some horses and Donald, who was named after his uncle, used to help out at the farm. He now is a Chevrolet dealer in Tunkhannock and in 1976 started with horses.

He said he's been working with Gary and Brandon Groves since 1985 and they've been raising the draft horses part time since, also raising Timothy and grass hays, and buying grains. "Brandon shows and Gary has the agricultural degree," Donald said.

The partnership is noted for their annual matching outfits, including blue dress shirts, red ties and caps.

In all, they have 16 Belgians and three Percheron on the farm. They have shown Marie at Syracuse, Hughsville, Troy and Ohio, and said that the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) is a big show for them.

The reserve grand champion Belgian stallion was shown by Paul Yoder, of Peach Bottom, also a regular exhibitor at the Farm Show. He also showed the reserve junior champion stallion.

In the other breeds, Windermere Farms showed the grand champion Percheron stallion, the reserve champion stallion, the senior champion mare, the reserve senior champion mare, and the junior champion stallion.

However, a mare shown by Cheryl Zimmerman, of Northampton, was grand champion mare and named best of the breed.

In the Clydesdale/shire division, Abraham and Mary Allebach, also regular winners at the state Farm Show, showed the best of the breed, the grand champion mare.

Steven Bentzel, from Hanover, showed the reserve senior champion mare, the senior and grand champion stallion, and the reserve grand champion mare.

FFA Holds Convention At Farm Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 200 members of the Pennsylvania FFA and parents and adult leaders Monday attended the 65th FFA Mid-Winter Convention in the Large Arena of the state Farm Show Complex.

It was the second straight year for the FFA to holds it convention in conjunction with the annual Farm Show event.

In previous years, the FFA held its convention at the Forum Building in Harrisburg, oblivious to participants and attendees across town at the state Farm Show. The two events were concurrent, but otherwise unassociated.

Last year, in order to boost public awareness of the organization, its leadership opted to hold the convention in the Large Arena of the complex. It was success and was repeated this year.

To a packed arena, the members conducted their annual convention meeting, held primarily to make recognition of the outstanding support to the organization by individuals, to present Keystone Farmer Degrees, the highest state degree, and to select the four recipients of the state Star awards, one of its highest honors.

Also honored are FFA chapters which have received state or state-and-national recognition for activities during the past year.

In addition to the special guests and recognized supporters, including Boyd Wolff, state secretary of agriculture, U.S. Sen. Harris Wofford gave a short address to the group.

Wofford talked about Russell Redding, former executive director of the state FFA and former state officer who now works as Wofford's chief of operations in Washington D.C., and how he can see the same leadership qualities that Redding possesses in the FFA state officers of 1993-94.

Of special emphasis during his address, Wofford talked about the need for education reform and how it is coming and that it will incorporate more of the FFA-way of passing on knowlege — by doing things.

"People learn best by doing," Wofford said. "Real learning involves getting your hands dirty," he said, adding that the same observation was made by Socrates — an excess of book knowledge without a direct real-world connection is more or less wasted knowledge.

"You're on the crest of education reform," he told the group saying that teachers should be more like coaches and provide instruction and support.

Further, he said that it will be based on a saying, "What I hear I forget. What I see, I remember. What I do, I understand."

Luke Watson receives a Pa. FFA State Star Award for agricultural sales, service and mechanics from Barry Oswald, state FFA advisor.

James Gerwert receives a Pa. FFA State Star Award for specialized agriculture from Barry Oswald, state FFA advisor.

In other business, Linda Hall, of the Little Lion FFA Chapter in State College, was the recipient of the 1993 FFA Computers in Agriculture award. In her work she incorporated several computers, and programmed spreadsheets for tracking and maintaining her chapter's citrus sales, and for research and for use in the chapter's SAE.

It is the last year the award is to be presented. Over the years, there were four recipients of that award.

Other awards presented included those to chapters which have increased membership by 10 or more during the past year; Nancy Clove was recognized with the Blue and Gold award for her outstanding service to the Pa. FFA.

Earl Brown was recognized for being Agricultural Science Teacher of the Year. As leader of the Spud Growers Chapter in Coudersport for 28 years, Brown has 159 youth enrolled in his program which has incorporated a number of different innovative projects.

Barry Oswald, state advisor, was also recognized by the association for his two years with the group. He announced a job change within the state Department of Education, that was causing him to leave.

A replacement was not announced.

The announcement of the 1994 State Star Award recipients began with an introduction of the regional stars. There are four different catagories in which a member can strive to achieve recognition for outstanding peformance: in production agriculture; in agricultural sales, service and mechanics; in horticultural production; and in specialized agriculture.

In the production catagory, Laurie Janine Wildman, daughter of Edward T. Wildman and Loretta Wildman, from Westfield, was named State Star.

Wildman, the FFA Northcentral Pa. Region Star in Production, has been involved with sheep and swine breeding and finishing for the past four years at her parents' farm. She also has gotten off-farm work experience at Fox's Pizza Den, and served as her chapter's reporter, vice president and president.

In addition to her FFA activities, she has been involved with the Leo Club, SADD, Student Council, and the high school yearbook staff. She said she intends to pursue a college degree in either agricultural education, or agricultural business.

The other regional production stars include James Findley, son of Kenneth and Kathy Findley, of Holtwood, the Eastern Regional Production Star, who has been involved with dairy calves and heifers, market and breeding swine, beef breeding, horse production and raising commercial vegetables.

Having served as vice president of the Manor FFA Chapter, Findley has worked on a farm as a dairy and crop farmer, has been involved with 4-H, and participated in the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives. He said he plans to eventually go into partnership with his two older brothers at the home farm.

Heather Fidler, is the FFA Western Pa. Production Star. The daughter of Richard and Mary Fidler, of West Alexander, she has served as reporter and vice president of the McGuffey FFA chapter while working with breeding sheep, market hogs and beef cattle.

She also has been involved with the West Alexander Ag Club, the West Alexander Fabric Fusers, and the County Council, and the German Club. She said she intends to pursue a physical therapy degree from Weeling Jesuit College.

Elizabeth Spayd receives a Pa. FFA State Star Award for horticulture from Barry Oswald, state FFA advisor.

Laurie Wildman receives a Pa. FFA State Star Award for production agriculture from Barry Oswald, state FFA advisor.

The Southcentral Pa. Production Star was Tracey Lynn Willwert, from the Red Lion FFA Chapter, where she has served as its secretary and president for two years. The daughter of John and Brenda Willwert, of Red Lion, she has been involved with beef, sheep, and swine finishing projects, as well as breeding sheep.

She is also involved in the Horse-N-Round 4-H Club and the York County 4-H Beef Club. She said she intends to pursue a college degree in business management.

The state FFA Star in Horticulture recipient was Elizabeth Spayd, daughter of Edwin and Mary Spayd, of Fleetwood, who has been involved in the production of perennials, bedding plants, azaleas and chrysanthemums. She has also worked at a summer produce stand.

Spayd, the Eastern Pa. Star Award winner, has served as secretary, treasurer, and chaplain of the Oley Valley FFA Chapter. She has also played high school field hockey, and been involved with LODA and Olean. She said she plans to work full time for the family business and then go to business school.

The state Ag Sales, Service and Mechanics Star is Luke Watson, a member and student advisor of the Spud Growers FFA Chapter, and also the northcentral region star.

The son of Douglas and Mary Watson, of Coudersport, Luke has worked for four years for his father at Ulysses Lumber Co. doing such things as piling lumber, doing equipment maintenance and construction of company buildings. He has also worked in a local store as a cashier and has also done a home improvement project.

Luke is a member of his church youth group and said he plans to pursue college-level forestry studies, before returning to work for his father.

The eastern region star is Andrew Horning, son of David and Janice Horning of Monton. His past work experience includes four years working as an electrician for Nolt Electic Service and two years working at Subway, while also serving as treasurer and vice chaplain of the Grassland FFA Chapter.

In addition, he has been involved with his church youth group, midget baseball, school wrestling and baseball. He said that after high school, he would like to work for his uncle, owner of Nolt Electric Service full time and eventually start his own business.

The western regional star is Jody Campbell, daugther of James and Donna Campbell, of Beaver County. Jody has served as president and treasurer of the H.G. Parkinson FFA Chapter and has been involved with work experience with the Seibel Family Farm, the largest producer of eggs in Beaver County, working with the whole process, from gathering eggs to boxing and taking inventory.

She also has belonged to the National Honor Society, and the Robinson Presbyterian Church. She said that working at the poultry operation has been a strong influence and she intends to pursue poultry science studies in college.

Brian Snyder, son of Rodney and Joyce Smyser, of York, has served as president, secretary, and parliamentarian for the Dover FFA Chapter. He has been involved with keeping track of records, feeding cattle and formulating the proper rations for growing cattle in four years' experience working at a dairy and with dairy heifers.

Outside of FFA activities, he has also participated in church youth group events and is on the high school golf team. He said he eventually would like to take over the family farm.

The state Specialized Agriculture Star is James Gertwert, son of James and Kathy Gertwert, of Altoona. James is currently president of the Bellwood-Antis FFA Chapter and has been involved in meat processing, working for J.G. Packing Company.

In his work experience, he has loaded trucks, packaged and cut meats. In addition, he has also performed two home improvement projects.

His other activities include high school basketball, track and cross country running; Boy Scouts of America, and at St. Mary's Catholic Church. He said he would like to earn a degree in business management and return to the meat packing business.

The Eastern Region Star for Specialized Agriculture is D. Joshua Troxell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troxell, of Pine Grove, and a member of the Grassland FFA Chapter.

His agricultural experience has been with beekeeping and research with computers and Chile. He has also worked at the Dave Lucas broiler and veal calf farm.

With his chapter, he has served on a variety of committees and has been active in a number of other organizations, including the golf team to the Pine Grove Youth Fellowship.

From the Northcentral region is Star Christiana Hoopes, of the Headwaters Chapter FFA. The daughter of James and Sandra Hoopes, of Ulysses, for the past four years she has bee growing sweet corn and cucumbers and a market steer.

She has served as chapter treasurer, secretary and president. She has also held leadership officerships in 4-H clubs and in her high school class and student council. She said she intends to purse agronomy and agribusiness studies and pursue a career as an agricultural consultant.

Of the four selected for star achievement, two are to represent Pennsylvania at the Eastern State Livestock Exposition in star judging. Selected to go are Laurie Wildman and Elizabeth Spayd.

Goat Show Wraps Up 1994 Farm Show Competiton

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The goat show wrapped up the final competition at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show on Thursday. Entries were down because bad weather prevented about 25 registered participants from traveling to the show, but with 180 head, competition remained stiff.

Clinching the coveted Best Doe of Show title were Harold and Joan Stump of Telford with their Alpine GCH Stump Hollow TS Bonjour.

Championship blood runs heavily in the doe's blood. In 1991, the Stumps captured the same prestigious title with this year's champion doe's dam.

Bonjour has been a grand champion for several years at shows across the state. She milked 2,600 pounds in lactation which compared to a cow translates into 26,000 pounds per lactation.

According to Jerome Mensch, judge for the event and a herdsman for a large dairy goat operation in Maryland, the champion has good angulation and a well attached, shapely udder with lots of room.

The champion gave birth to doe triplets this past year.

The Stumps, who raise 20 Alpines, said they became interested in goats by accident. It happened in 1981, when Harold built a barn to house his antique barn equipment. He thought it would be good to add a part to keep a pet animal. Someone talked them into buying two pet goats. Later, an acquaintance who was into showing goats, convinced them to enter a show. That year, they placed at the bottom of a large class.

"My husband couldn't handle that. He determined to move up so he could at least get the last ribbon that is handed out," Joan said.

The next year, he did. But that wasn't good enough. He set his sights on the grand champion title. By 1985, the Stumps became serious breeders. Championship ribbons are now a permanent achievement with their show string.

In the La Mancha division, Ann Miller's GCH Rockspring Pulsar Dixie Debra was named champion. The La Mancha champion is a 6-year-old two-star milker. It has an excellent 90 classification and received the Best Udder in its breed at the National Goat Show held this past summer.

Miller raises 40 head of Toggenburgs and La Manchas on her Telford farm and consistently wins best of breed and best of show titles.

Miller duplicated her champion win in the Toggenburg division by showing Rockspring COMM Gabriele Gleam. The doe carries two legs toward a championship, but this year's title did not count because Farm Show competition is a restricted show.

In the Nubian division, Jane Schalitzky of Landisburg, Perry County, took the grand champion title with Deer Trail Chili Krystal. It was the first time Schalitzky saw one of her nine Nubians capture the championship in her 10 years of showing.

In the All Other Purebreds division, Jamie Harpster took the top placing with her Sannen doe 40 Crossing Peaches & Cream. Jamie, a 16-year-old from State College has been showing for five years. This was the first time, she showed a champion from the 11-head herd. In addition to Sannens, Jamie raises Nubians and Toggenburgs.

In the Recorded Grades Division, a 7-year-old doe named Marina showed by Helen Snyder took first place. It was the third year for Snyder to win top placing with a Nubian. Snyder raises 40 head of Nubians and two head of recorded breeds on her Newport farm.

Marina, who milks 4,000 pounds, is listed in the top 10 production record of DHIR.

Dairymen's Association Presents Awards

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—The annual Dairymen's Association banquet again featured the presentation of the prestigious Charles E. Cowan and extension awards. Tom Kelly of Tyrone in Blair County received the Cowan award and Robert Graves, ag engineer at Penn State, received the extension award.

Kelly graduated from Penn State in 1958 and began his career as an assistant county agent in Blair County. He then served as a holstein fieldman for both the Pennsylvania and national holstein associations. Tom also worked for Curtiss Breeding Service and was manager of the Pa. All-American, Keystone Livestock Expo and the Pa. Farm Show.

Tom and his wife Peg had a life long dream of owning and managing their own dairy farm. That dream became a reality in 1974 when Spring Lane Farm was established. Currently the farm consists of 350 acres on which corn, alfalfa and soybeans are grown. The Kelly herd currently has a rolling herd average on 84 cows of 25,025 lbs. of milk 3.7 923 of butterfat and 3.1 788 lbs. of protein. The herd has a BAA of 105.8 and has received the PBR award for 6 years and the progressive genetic herd award for three years. The Kellys have bred or developed 19 excellent cows and exported animals and embryos to 11 countries.

Tom currently serves as a national holstein director and is chairman of the executive committee. He is also vice chairman and director of the Pennwest Farm Credit and is serving as the treasurer of the 1995 national holstein convention which Pennsylvania will host in Pittsburgh in June of 1995.

Tom is very active in his church, Sinking Valley Presbyterian Church, where he serves as an elder, treasurer and a Sunday school teacher. Tom also has served as the PTO president and served on the advisory board of Tyrone Area High School.

Tom and wife Peg have five children. Brian, a district sales manager with Atlantic Breeders, Suzanne, director/teacher at the Cumberland, Maryland Montessori School, Miriam, a junior at Virginia Tech, Rebecca a senior at Tyrone Area High School and John David (J.D.) a freshman at Tyrone.

The Kelly family was honored in 1983 as the Blair County Farm family of the year. Tom has received many recognitions including being named to the National Honor Society for Agriculture, Gamma Sigma Delta at Penn State and in 1989 was awarded the distinguished alumnus award by Delta Theta Sigma at Penn State.

The Charles E. Cowan award was established to recognize dairy farmers who have made major contributions to the states.

Graver is a professor in the department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering and works with animal housing systems and the storage, handling and utilization of animal waste. Bob received his B.S. degree in Agriculture from Cornell University in 1965. Following graduation he worked with the family dairy operation while also getting his M.S. and PhD. degrees from the University of Massachusetts. In 1972 he became Assistant Professor of Ag Engineering at the University of Wisconsin - Madison. He returned to Massachusetts and Pine Meadow Farm, a 300 cow, 500 acre dairy and crop farm in 1977 and joined the Penn State faculty in 1982.

Graves has had a distinguished career as an extension educator in the area of structures and the environment. He is recognized nationally as a leader in the development of agricultural engineering educational programs and materials. He has had a key role in the development of livestock waste management systems. He was a significant contributor to a series of manure management information pieces and was editor of the PA

Department of Environmental Resources (DER) manual on manure management. Early on, Graves helped prepare a handbook that set forth many of the standards and specifications related to free-stall housing for dairy cattle. As shown by his writings, he was a leader in developing animal treatment and handling systems while pointing out that attention had to be paid to the health and well-being of animals when designing structures and facilities for livestock.

The quality for his educational programs is evidenced by the 17 American Society of Ag Engineers (ASAE) Blue Ribbon Awards he has received and by the frequent invitations to present papers at regional, national and international meetings. Bob has authored or coauthored over 250 publications and developed numerous slide sets and computer programs in his educational efforts. He contributes regularly to the Dairy Science Extension newsletter for county agents and writes for Hoards Dairyman and other trade publications. Graves was chairman of the highly successful National Dairy Freestall Housing Symposium held in Harrisburg in 1986. He has contributed to a number of other statewide or regional workshops since that time. Most recently, a regional workshop on Expansion Strategies for Dairy Farms held in western Pennsylvania was most successful.

Bob was recognized by his peers when he received the 1993 Structures and Environment Award presented by the ASAE during its international meeting this past summer. The award is given each year to honor an individual who has demonstrated outstanding and meritorious achievements in agricultural structures and environment.

Bob is a member of the American Society of Ag Engineers, The American Dairy Science Association, Dairy Shrine, Gamma Sigma Delta and Alpha Zeta. Bob and his wife, Ann, live in State College.

Bob Rugaber, retired county agent from Butler, was the toastmaster. Walter Peechatka, state deputy secretary from PDA, and Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean at Penn State, brought greetings. Jennifer Grimes, state dairy princess, told of her love for farming, and Joyce Bupp, 1993 Women of the Year at the World Dairy Expo, and columnist for Lancaster Farming was the featured speaker. Bupp related the humorous side of farming with her experiences as a farm wife.

Lebanon County Ayrshire Is Farm Show Supreme

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Lebanon countians are familiar with the owners of the supreme champion dairy cow of the 1994 state Farm Show, since they've been showing Ayrshires at the county fair for several years.

Shawn Hernley and his sister Heather Shearer showed their 5-year-old Ayrshire Jessica, a Canadian-bred animal which classified Very Good under the Canadian system and was bred by Neil Kittle, of Ontario, who showed the animal during the breed show, while Shawn showed her during the juding for the supreme champion.

Shawn and Heather had purchased Jessica two years ago from Kittle and have been showing her. Not currently on test with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, her 2-year-old record in Canada was 14,000 pounds of milk.

She freshened in September with a heifer calf and has been milking well.

"It's a terrific feeling," Shawn said. "It shows that hard work and effort pays off sometimes. Thanks to a lot of people, I feel great."

Shawn and his wife Karen, have two daughters Merritt and Amber, and live at the home farm south of Fredericksburg, where they have 17 head of Ayrshire and a number of Holsteins.

Accoring to Shawn, the family farm began keeping Ayrshires when Heather was starting in 4-H and got one for a project animal. He said she got the family enthused about the breed and she started showing and winning with her brown and white cows and showed a couple of junior division champions over the years.

Heather married in May and lives in Bradford County on a dairy farm with her husband Steve, where they have his Holsteins and her Ayrshires, Shawn said.

After the judges announced the Ayrshire supreme, Shawn said that while the five other breed grand champions, he really thought that Berneta Gable's grand champion Guernsey would have been selected as supreme. He said he didn't actually expect it to be his Ayrshire.

"But then I guess you are pickier about your own animals and can see more flaws than in someone else's animal," he said.

The lineup of champions, excepting the sumpreme champion, includes, from the left, the Jersey shown by Scott Fisher, Brandon Snyder, James Kennedy, and Keith Fisher, and Tom McCauley.

Gable's Guernsey was named first runner-up supreme, however, even though, when the Farm Show began naming supreme champions, they had decided against naming any runnerup to supreme.

The naming of the supreme dairy cow highlighted the six-breed show that saw 435 dairy cattle in all shown.

In the Ayrshire division, John Rodgers, of Belleville, showed the junior champion and the reserve senior and grand champion animals.

Dale Maulfair, and family, who owns a neighboring farm to the Hernleys, was named premier breeder of the show and shared premier exhibitor honors with John Rodgers.

The reserve junior champion was shown by Sharon Rader, of Connoquenessing.

In the Brown Swiss breed, Jason Kennedy, of Butler, showed both the grand and reserve grand champions and was named the premier breeder and exhibitor.

The Kennedys champion was Four Seasons Jade Erica.

Berneta Gable, of New Enterprise, not only showed the grand champion Gurnsey, but also showed the junior champion.

The premier breeder and exhibitor was Gor-Wood-D Holsteins, owned by the Gordon Wood family of Mansfield.

In the Jersey show, the grand and senior champion was shown by Madison Fisher, from Newville, while Scott Youse, and Russell Subject, of Oley, showed the reserve senior and grand champion Jersey. The two Berks Countians were also named the premier exhibitors of the show.

The junior champion Jersey was shown by Harold and Shirley Harpster, of Boalsburg, while the reserve junior champion was shown by J. Craig and Susan Wicker, of Centre Hall.

Joyce Harpster, of Boalsburg, was named the premier breeder.

In the Milking Shorthorn breed, Christine Young, of New Enterprise, showed the senior and grand champion, the reserve senior and grand champion, and was named premier breeder and exhibitor of the show.

The junior champion was shown by James Young, of New Enterprise, and the reserve junior champion was shown by Jennifer Miller, of New Enterprise.

Shawn Hernley smiles broadly while holding the halter of the supreme champion dairy cow of the state Farm Show. State Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff holds the banner and looks on. State Dairy Princess Jennifer Grimes helps with the presentation.

Frank Orner, Pennsylvania DHIA president, made the announcement of Dave's selection as the new general manager after lengthy discussions in the board meeting Monday afternoon. Orner said Dave will be responsible for overall adminstration of personnel, financial, and legal management of the association. This will include office, field, laboratory, and record processing services.

Dave holds a bachelor of science degree from Penn State and was named distinguished alumnus for the department of dairy and animal science in 1991. He worked for Penn State and Ohio State as an extension agent and was at one time employed with the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Most recently Dave was a Holstein breeder in Crawford County and served for 19 years on the Atlantic Breeders Coop board of directors, 10 years as president. He was a member of Federated Genetics Council, the National Association of Animal Breeders board, and the National Council on Dairy Cattle Breeding.

Dave's involvement with DHIA has included the Dairy Records Processing Advisory Committee and the State DHIA Task Force. In northwestern Pennsylvania, Dave served as a director of Farm Credit and taught computer seminars for regional farmers, a financial workshop for bankers, and courses on agricultural careers for high school students.

In his local community Dave has served his church as moderator, deacon, trustee and Sunday School teacher. He served as a 4-H dairy club leader, a director of Crawford County Holstein Club, and a committee person for the extension dairy advisory committee.

Recently, Dave and his wife Kaye worked with Volunteers in Overseas Cooperative Assistance, advising farmers about forming cooperatives in Bolivia, South America. The Slussers have two children, Lee and Dana, who are both in college.

"I think Pennsylvania DHIA needs strong leadership," Dave said in an interview in the state office on Tuesday. "And the board of directors thought I was the one to give them that leadership as we make the transition into a competitive organization. I'm very humbled that they think I can handle that. I'm humbled by that confidence. There is an awful lot to do, and we might fail.

"I would have liked to have two years to learn everything about the organization so I could be prepared to lead. Even one year would have helped. But I need to learn real quick. DHIA is going through tremendous change from more or less a monopoly to a competitive organization. It almost seems to me that Pennsylvania is experiencing the blunt of this new experiment. I think this is the real challenge.

"Pennsylvania has a very excellent board of directors. But they have been criticized harshly and very unfairly in the past. I think they are and were honest men trying to do what they thought was right for all our members. They made mistakes. But they have a farm to run at home and a few days every other month in State College doesn't give them enough knowledge to run the day to day operation of the organization. They have to be led. I really believe a good farm organization has to have a good management leader. I'm not sure I'm the one, but I think every successful farm cooperative has had good management leadership.

"My concern is for all dairymen but especially Pennsylvania dairymen. We are in hard times. Dairy farming is changing so fast, and I'm not sure the average dairyman is aware of what's happening. I'm not sure DHIA has a grasp of what's happening.

"Herds are getting larger. We will always have the "part-time" herds and the large herds. The medium-size herds will fade away. I've read these projections for many years. Our own herd was in the medium range, and I saw we needed to get larger or one of us needed to seek income off the farm. We opted to take the punt option and sell the farm.

"It's hard to say why I wanted this job. I had other less risky job opportunities, but it seemed I was led in this direction. I really believe a lot of DHIA's problems could have been prevented through leadership. I have thought all along as things progressed that there were better ways to do it. But I don't want to dwell on that. We need to start where we are and move ahead. We can't do anything about the past, but we can do an awful lot about the future. It's going to take some dramatic changes of policy and philosophy by the board, by the staff, and by the members. A lot of it is sheer leadership. We are brothers and sisters in this business. We are out for the member's good.

"Farmers need to be worked with and helped through changing times. The general manager is the rudder that steers the ship. That's true, but it's not true. The captain is above at the wheel and that captain is the board of directors. They set the direction of the ship.

"In the past few years, I think the motive of the board was to keep preparing for the future, and that was centralization. A lot of people were against centralization, but it makes sense. When you have four or five employees on your farm, you want them to be your employees. You don't want to go through another group or another farmer to your employees. I think that's what the board of directors was trying to do. Some mistakes were made that hurt that process.

"What I plan to do is spend a lot of time in the field. That will be hard because there is so much to do here in the office. But the members need to rebuild their trust in Pennsylvania DHIA, the board, the staff and the management. Trust needs to be built up. Distrust, real or imagined, has hurt us. So I plan to try to heal these problems from the bottom up. In the past it was build from the top down.

"We have an excellent lab. Nationally, it is rated 100 percent in quality work. We also have excellent field service technicians, who also rated 100 percent in the annual evaluation by the National Dairy Herd Improvement Asosciation.

"In addition, we have an excellently rated processing center; in other words, everything we do has been rated among the best in the nation.

"But trust must be rebuilt. And this must be done reasonably fast. It's a real challenge.

"The dairy industry lacks leadership that draws people together. We must work together or we are going to die together. It's a peril that dairymen are in today because we can't work together. We can no longer expect government help. And the market isn't going to do it. Markets will be competitive and cheap. Farmers can help themselves if they work together. It doesn't seem to work that way, but it's my mission.

"We at DHIA need to watch our image. You need to watch your image as much as your actions. Recently the comment was made that we don't want to give out cost information because people will use it to bid against us. But the other side of this reasoning is that to not give cost information gives the impression (image) that we don't know what the costs are or what's going on. We know what the costs are, and we know what's going on, and we need to get people to know this.

"Farming has a way of hardening a person's heart. I saw it happening to me over the years. But I decided I wasn't going to allow the family business to make me less of a person. I caught that tendency in myself and corrected it. But I can certainly understand how it hardens people's hearts.

"The same is true of the family. The worse you handle the pressures of life, the worse you deal with your family. We have to correct that. And my solution, the only solution that I see in all of this is to run the association by 'THE BOOK.' When you follow the guidelines in the Bible, you have a foundation that will help you. It will be hard, but I have the tools to handle it when someone gets angry with me. These tools are in The Book.

"In Pennsylvania DHIA we are in a grave situation. We must stop the hemorrhaging of the organization. We have to appeal to the good businessmen on the dairy farm. A lot of people who make the most noise won't be in business a few years from now. I'm not sure where we will go in the future. But our mission is to make sure there is an excellent DHIA program for the dairymen in Pennsylvania. We want to do whatever is necessary to accomplish this. But I'm not sure we can continue with the program as we now have it. It's too early to tell.

"We want to be friendly competitors with neighboring organizations so we don't burn any bridges that would keep us from forming alliances in the future. I'm going to try to work more closely with Lancaster and Crawford. We have allowed pride and stubbornness in the dairy industry to cost farmers too much for too long. And they can't afford the extra cost."

"But we will have to prove ourselves. To go in and pick off one herd at a time in the neighboring territories will be a win/lose situation. We need to work with other organizations in a cooperative way.

"I have always been a competitive man. I promoted free enterprise as a farmer. But I now hate what is has done to the family farm. I always wanted the government to get out of farming and let supply and demand take its course. But in all my years as a farmer, I don't think I realized what it was doing to farm families because farmers can't work together.

"I want to be the mediator, the liason between the factions in this organization. I want to pull people together. I believe that's my gift. It's certainly my goal to get farmers to work together. If at all possible, I would like to see all of Pennsylvania back together again. That would be my ultimate goal.

"No, I don't mind if you put that in print."

9-Year-Old Exhibitor Wins Supreme Market Lamb At Farm Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — While a crowd gathered at the podium and the champions stepped up to get their picture taken, Chelsea Viti reached over and gave "Curly," her supreme champion market lamb, a hug and a kiss.

Chelsea, 9, in the third grade at South Side Beaver School, showed her 132-pound Hampshire-Suffolk spring ewe lamb to the championship on Wednesday afternoon at the Farm Show.

Chelsea is the daughter of Don and Linda Viti, Hookstown, Beaver County.

Meanwhile, Benjamin Bow held to his 138-pound heavyweight reserve champion, a Suffolk ewe that became reserve supreme at the market lamb championship. Ben, 16, the son of Ben and Mary Bow, Locust Ridge Farm, is a 10th grader at Annville Cleona. He is an eight-year member of Lebanon County 4-H.

Brandy Horning, 15, daughter of Bruce and Phyllis Horning, Huntingdon, won the champion carcass on-rail competition at the Farm Show.

The champion is a "combination of what our industry needs," said Budd Martin, Williard, Ohio, show judge. The lamb "had a tremendous amount of youthfulness and muscle," he said. He said the champion has what is important, placing "a lot of emphasis on dimension in the top."

Martin raises purebred Cheviots and Dorsets and wether ewes.

Brandy Horning, 15, daughter of Bruce and Phyllis Horning, Huntington, won the champion carcass on-rail show. Brandy has exhibited at the Huntingdon County Fair and KILE, in addition to the Blair County Fair.

In all, there were a total of 168 exhibitors. Following is a list of show placings.

Company Pulls Mite Remedy, Beekeepers May Suffer

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's beekeepers are preparing nervously for winter, hoping that their colonies survive the cold better than they did last year.

As the temperatures drop and leaves fall, there's good news and bad news for the state's honey bees, according to a Penn State bee expert.

"The good news is that honey supplies are better now than last fall, meaning most colonies should have adequate food for the winter," said Maryann Frazier, entomology extension associate in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "The bad news is that parasitic mites still are a serious threat to honey bee colonies."

Bees are especially susceptible to deadly varroa and tracheal mites when under stress from low food supplies and cold weather. Last winter, when a poor fall nectar flow reduced honey stores and frigid weather lasted well into March, bee mortality reached 50 percent or more statewide. Some beekeepers were nearly wiped out. The resulting bee shortage left many fruit and vegetable growers scrambling to find enough colonies to pollinate their crops this spring.

The battle against mites this winter is complicated by the loss of a potentially effective chemical treatment. The manufacturer of Miticur has removed the chemical from the market and plans to cancel its registration, making it illegal to use after Jan. 1.

"Research at Penn State and elsewhere suggests that responsible use of the chemical amitraz in the form of Miticur is highly effective in controlling varroa and tracheal mites," Frazier said. "It's unfortunate that beekeepers will lose that treatment option."

With the withdrawal of Miticur, menthol is the only chemical treatment available for control of tracheal mites, and fluvalinate, in the form of Apistan Strips, is the only approved chemical for treatment of varroa mites.

With chemical treatments few and mite resistance to miticides a growing problem, beekeepers increasingly are considering alternative control strategies. One option that shows promise is "extender patties."

These are made from vegetable shortening and granulated sugar, and are provided to bees as food throughout the spring and summer. After honey intended for human consumption is removed from the hive in the fall, an antibiotic is added to the patties.

"It's possible that when mites feed, they transmit pathogens that can weaken or kill the host bee," says Frazier. "The antibiotic may help the bees combat infection."

Since older field bees tend to have many mites in their trachea at this time of year, another effective strategy, suggested by Ohio State researchers, is to "lose" a colony's field force in late fall.

This can be done by moving a colony or apiary up to two miles away from its original site. When the field bees return to the original site and have no colony to enter, they will die within a few days. "By eliminating the field force, a significant portion of the mites also can be eliminated," Frazier said.

A third option some beekeepers are adopting is to do nothing and let nature take its course.

"This may result in the loss of many or even most colonies in an operation," Frazier said. "But those that survive probably have some mite resistance. Surviving colonies then can be split in the spring and used as breeder colonies to rear queens.

"The presence of two different mites complicates this strategy and beekeepers using this method may suffer losses for many years before realizing success," she said. "But the advantage is clear — pesticide-free beekeeping."

"My livestock judging experiences have given me self confidence and my travels have shown me how important a good education is," Brian said.

April Ann Lazarus, daughter of Lynn and Ilene Lazarus of Germansville, graduated from Northwestern Lehigh High School, where she was active in softball and track, and is now a senior at Lehigh County Community College majoring in occupational therapy.

April has been active in the Lehigh County 4-H lamb and swine clubs, where she was voted as most helpful member in her 4-H club, and has been exhibiting at the Pennsylvania Farm Show since 1986. The Lazarus Family has exhibited at the Farm Show and Keystone International Livestock Exposition for decades.

"When my children come of age, I plan to encourage them to join 4-H and tell them stories of my great expereiences," April said. "Four-H has taught me a variety of things like sportsmanship, assertiveness, leadership and responsibility. I can happily say it was a great part of my childhood I will never forget."

Michelle Lee Vonada, daughter of William and Bonnie Vonada of Mackeyville, graduated from Bald Eagle Nittany High School where she held a variety of offices, and now attends Penn State with a major in dairy and animal science.

Hillidaysburg, and Jessie Wagner, from Carlisle, took second and third places, respectively.

The evening closed with a celebrity cow milking and butter making contest. Secretary Wolff challenged State Police Commissioner Glenn Walp to a head-to-head competition. They were joined by area media celebrities.

Walp and his wife, Mary, won the competition with a cow provided by Norma and David Lucabaugh, from York County.

The team from WAGL-TV, Lisa Mischler and Mike Hostetler, took second and the WWKL-FM team of Jeffers and Ryan placed third.

"Dairy Fun Night" was sponsored by the 4,000 dairy farmers that support the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. The PA Department of Agriculture co-sponsored the evening's activities.

Chocolate Cake Contest Appeals To Chocoholics

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Two attributes that Joanne Kuhns possesses, she believes, helped her win first place in the Greatest Chocolate Cake contest.

"I'm a chocoholic and I love to bake," she said. She spent 2½ hours placing almond slivers in a circular pattern on the cake.

Joanne has been entering cooking contests for the last five years at Carbon, Lehigh, Schuylkill, and Columbia Fairs. Last year at the Farm Show, she was one of the top 10 finalists for the cake contest. This year, her cake was chosen from 47 entries from first-prize county fair winners across the state.

While waiting for the judges to make their decision, Joanne said, "I've never been this nervous since I got married. I show in horse competitions and I never was this nervous."

Joanne and her husband, David, crop farm and raise Christmas trees in Bloomsburg.

Joanne also bakes and sells yeast breads at her hometown farmers' market once a week. Her win brought her a weekend trip for four to the Hershey Resort and Conference Center.

First prize cake is Hershey Chocolate Almond Cake.

Second-place went to Jill Fleisher of Chambersburg. This was her first time for Farm Show competition although she has been baking for many years.

"I felt confident until I got here and saw the other 44 entries," Jillsaid.

Actually Jill's cake tied for first place, and judges went into overtime to deliberate the winning entry.

Jill and her husband Randy have three kids who like to help her bake. "My recipe uses five Score bars. We eat a little piece out each bar for our lucky number," Jill said.

When she was announced the $50 winner, her son said, "That's 'cause we ate pieces from the

Caramelized Honey Produces Prize-Winning Apple Pie

LOU ANN GOOD

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Julie Freeman was too nervous to sit and watch the judging during the apple pie contest held at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show on January 8. She wandered around the Farm Show Complex and missed the first announcement by Sec. of Ag Boyd Wolff that proclaimed her pie the best in Pennsylvania.

It was Julie's third try but the first win for the state title as champion apple pie baker.

"I've got a secret — actually two — but I don't think I'd better give away my secrets," the teary-eyed champion said of her prize-winning pie.

One secret, she said, was the caramelized honey sauce that she devised.

The Schuylkill County winner said that she made three pies that morning so she would have two for backups in case something disastrous happened on the icy drive to the competition.

She thought she would automatically be disqualified when the sauce cooked over the edges of the pie. But Judges Minnie Siefreid, owner of Our Daily Bread Restaurant; Margaret Wolff, wife of State Secretary of Agriculture Boyd

Eight-Year-Old Bakes Best Cookies In State

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Jennifer Intrepido of Nazareth is only 8 years old, but she can bake the best cookies in the state.

That's what the judges decided when they chose Jennifer's Chocolate-Caramel Cookie Bars from 48 entries. To enter the contest, participants first needed to win first prize at one of the 107 county and local fairs in Pennsylvania.

Jennifer first won at the Allentown Fair. She confessed that she burned her first batch when preparing her entry. But the second batch turned out perfect and scrumptious according to taste-testers.

"My mom is a good cook," said the second grader, who is the daughter of Patrick and Jolene Intrepido.

This was Jennifer's first year to enter competition. She won a weekend trip for four to the Hershey Resort and Conference Center.

Second place went to 12-year-old Lisa Achenbach. It was a step up for the 12-year-old who placed

Prize-Winning

Wolff; Lisa Tressler, Department of Agriculture, and Robert Brown Jr., owner of Brown's Catering in Danville chose the winning entry for its wonderful crust and rich taste.

Julie and her husband Rick, a beekeeper, have 12 apple trees. Generally she uses yellow transparent apples for her pies, but that variety does not keep well over the winter. For her entry, Dunn's Fruit Farm in New Ringold donated Mutsie apples, which Julie found to be perfect.

First prize was $100.

Second prize and $60 was earned by Lois Knott of Alexandria for her Pennsylvania Dutch Apple Pie. She used an old-fashioned Smokehouse apple that she homecanned for the event.

"Smokehouse apples do not change color, get soft, or change texture," she said.

"You must use real butter, nothing else will do," Lois said of the importance of using top quality ingredients.

This was the first entry for Lois who used the recipe handed down from her grandmother. "My mother is in her 80s and I can't wait to go home and tell her," Lois said.

Lois and her husband Richard, who are both retired, grow many vegetables and fruits on their 4-acre lot. They have 20 apple trees of several varieties.

Third place went to Hilda Steigerwalt of the Schnecksville Community Fair. She was not available for an interview.

Here is the recipe for the first-place win.

Peggy Wolff said judging the apple pie contest is harder than she expected. "There is a great diversity of flavors and tastes, and wonderful crusts," she said.

How hard can my job be? asks Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff who gourged himself with pies, cakes, and cookies while he served as announcer for the contests. On the left is Lois Knott, second-place winner in the pie contest; on the right is Julie Freeman, first-place winner.

Score bars."

Third place and $35 went to Kay Kelso of Carlisle. Her Italian Chocolate Cream Cake is a recipe that she recently attained, but she credits her baking expertise to her growing up years.

"When I was growing up on the farm, it was my responsibility to cook while the others milked cows," she said.

Kay often enters items at the Fair and is usually a winner, although this was the first time in the chocolate cake competition.

HERSHEY CHOCOLATE ALMOND CAKE

2 cups Wondra flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1cup cocoa
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ cup oil
1 cup hot cappuccino coffee

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Use two greased and waxed 8- or 9-inch round cake pans. Combine dry ingredients. Add eggs, milk, and oil, and mix well. Add cappuccino slowly, mixing thoroughly. Bake 40 minutes and test for doneness.

Filling: Combine 5 tablespoons Wondra flour and 1 cup milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is a thick and smooth paste. Cool. Beat ½ pound butter, 1 cup sugar, and 1 teaspoon vanilla until creamy. Add paste mixture and beat well. Add ½ cup ground almonds and beat until blended.

Icing:

¼ pound butter, softened
⅓ cup shortening
1 pound confectioners' sugar
½ cup Hershey's cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

This watch is available in both men's and women's styles. To receive your new work watch, read and complete the coupon below, and send it with your payment to:

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

At the Heart of Cholesterol

It's 1994. Do you know what your blood cholesterol level is? While experts continue to study the significance of blood cholesterol, they do agree that most Americans could help control or even lower their blood cholesterol by reducing the intake of fat, especially saturated fat and dairy cholesterol.

There are two important dietary guidelines to help control blood cholesterol levels:

• The American Heart Association suggests that daily intake of dietary cholesterol should be 300 mg or less.

• Total fat intake should be no higher than 30 percent of daily calories with only 1 percent coming from saturated fat.

A diet low in fat does not need to leave you feeling deprived. Today, a number of foods are available in reduced-fat version, making it relatively easy to lower your daily intake of fat. There are many basic food alternatives that can help you cut back on fat.

Here are some suggestions:

• Drink skim or 1 percent milk instead of whole milk and select reduced-fat salad dressings instead of regular.

• Use plain nonfat yogurt to top a baked potato instead of sour cream, butter or margarine.

• Buy leaner, lower fat cuts of meat. Select beef round and loin instead of chuck or rib cuts.

• Select lower grades of meat. For example, choice or good grades have less fat than U.S. Department of Agriculture prime grades.

• Try lower fat foods, such as skinless chicken instead of beef; fruit instead of premium ice cream, and whole grain cereal instead of sausage and eggs.

• Choose tuna packed in water versus tuna in oil. You will cut that fat in a single serving by 6 grams.

• Instead of adding cream, use pureed potato or rice to thicken soups.

• When making omelets or scrambled eggs, use two to three egg whites in place of each whole egg.

• Salsa, jam, mustard, and barbecue sauce have no fat. Use them instead of gravy, hollandaise sauce, butter, margarine, and mayonnaise.

• Use herbs and spices versus high fat flavor enhancers.

When selecting foods, be sure to consider all of your alternatives. You will be surprised at the number of lower fat options available to you.

Best Cookies

third in last year's competition. Needless to say, she's planning for a return visit next year for a blue ribbon.

To come up with her entry, Lisa baked several different recipes of chocolate cookies and took them to a family outing on Memorial Day. The purpose was to find out what guests liked best, but according to Lisa, everyone chose something different. So Lisa combined three of the recipes to come up with the prize winning entry.

Lisa is the daughter of Wayne and Kay Weaver.

Third place went to Heather Ulrich, 14, who won at the New Holland Fair. The Garden Spot ninth grader said that she got the recipe from a friend, and then made a mistake when she was making it. She refused to divulge her mistake but it obviously turned out to be a mistake in her favor.

The competition is co-sponsored by Hershey's Foods and the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs.

Here is the first-place recipe.

CHOCOLATE CARAMEL COOKIE BARS

¼ up butter
¼ cup cocoa powder
2⅔ cups shredded coconut
1 can condensed milk
½ cup creamy peanut butter
14 caramels
2 teaspoon butter
2 teaspoon water
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
½ cup confectioners' sugar
½ cup slivered almonds
12-ounce bag chocolate chips

In microwave, melt butter and mix with graham cracker crumbs, cocoa powder and confectioners' sugar. Spread mixture evenly in a 9x13-inch pan. Drizzle condensed milk over the crust layer. Put ⅓ cup coconut on crust. Drizzle condensed milk on coconut. Place ½ cup slivered almonds on top of coconut layer. Drizzle some condensed milk on almonds. Put the other 1⅓ cup coconut on almonds. Drizzle remaining condensed milk and pat down to compact. Bake for 20 minutes. Over a hot stove, melt 12 ounces chocolate chips and ½ cup creamy peanut butter. Spread this mixture over warm bars. Cool. When chocolate is firm, put the caramel mixture on top. Melt caramels, butter, and water for this top mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

Milk Commercials

ROSEMONT, Ill. — The combined fluid milk advertising program of United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) and the National Dairy Board will launch a second phase of 30-second "It Shows" commercials for airing on television beginning the week of Jan. 31.

The two new advertisements, shot in an urban setting and a rural setting, respectively, celebrate traditional values connected to milk. Each commercial uses both images and words to communicate the nutritional benefits — bright eyes, soft skin and strong bones — and the good taste of milk. They show everyday people of all ages — such as a grandfather dancing with his grandson — who look and feel their best drinking milk.

"The ads offer a broad spectrum of the population a personal sense of reward, of doing something good for yourself by drinking milk," says Steve Dohrmann, UDIA vice president of marketing planning.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Every sport has its dangers.

Some sports, obviously, are more fraught with hazards than others.

Mountain climbing, automobile racing, ski jumping, and sailing around the world all by yourself immediately come to mind as activities in which the risk levels are pretty high from man contending with the forces of speed, gravity, and Mother Nature.

Not to mention the threat to life and limb posed by participating in person-on-person competitive sports like football, ice hockey and participation in after-Christmas 70-percent reduction sales. (In a frightening commentary on our crime-ridden society, a champion ice skater was physically attacked by an assailant while this was being written.)

More low-key, laid-back sports activities have their own risk factors. Golfers have been known to clobber one another with mis-hit balls. Remember former President Gerald Ford and his sometimes errant golf swing? Having tried golf once, I can identify with that.

You don't often see a doctor rushed in to care for a bowling tournament injury. But, drop one of those ball on your foot or catch your finger between two of 'em, and there's still the potential for pain.

Even joggers — running along minding their own business — face the possibilities of shin splints, nasty dogs, and reckless drivers. Or maybe reckless dogs and nasty drivers.

As career participants in one of the long-known most dangerous professions — farming — we generally figure we're safer in most of our recreational pursuits than we are entering the barn every morning. Chasing heifers across a manure-slippery lot, hooking up high-speed PTO equipment, and moving farm equipment along our increasingly- traffic- laden highways are daily threats to life and limb.

So our sports activities — canoeing, hiking, cross-country skiing, wave surfing at the beach, fishing — seem real tame by comparison.

And there can't be a recreational activity much safer than one of our ongoing, daily passions: bird-watching. Right? Unless one falls off the ladder crawling up to fill the bird feeder ... or is dive bombed by an indignant bluejay ... or gets beaten up by one's binoculars. Wait. Don't laugh.

So I certainly felt no sense of impending danger on a recent, relatively-pleasant Sunday afternoon journey to check out the eagles at the river. Though wildlife experts are suggesting that eagles may soon have made enough of a population comeback to be removed from the endangered list, the local presence of these majestic birds is still awesome to us.

But there they are, visible apparently nearly anytime from the fisherman's park area just below Conowingo Dam, last hydro-electric power plant on the Susquehanna before it flows into the Chesapeake Bay. In the hour or so we spent there on the west bank, we observed two immature and one white-headed mature bald eagle.

The soaring metal towers which support the electrical wires crossing across the river seem to be their favored perching spots. As they survey the rocky river bottom below from their high-rise overlooks, the wind ruffles the eagles' feathers, as if teasing these beautiful predators to take wing and soar away.

But to see this, you need a spotting scope or pair of field glasses. And, bundled up as we were against the chilly January breeze, my glasses became tangled in my heavy coat collar. When I yanked at the neck strap to free it, the heavy glasses — rather than the strap — jerked upward, smacking me square on the mouth. Even before I got the cut to stop bleeding, the tissue had started to swell.

Birdwatching is not generally considered to be a sport hazardous to your health.

Trust me. It can give you a fat lip.

'PASTABILITIES'

Americans are taking a new look at pasta because they're taking a new look at carbohydrates. Carbohydrates have had their ups and downs in dietary history. Today, they are recognized as playing a vital role in maintaining a healthy diet.

Pasta is high in complex carbohydrates and is recognized for its health benefits. Both the American Heart Association and the American Diabetes Association recommend the consumption of a diet high in complex carbohydrates. This type of diet is associated with a decreased risk of high blood cholesterol, coronary heart disease, and provides a vehicle for control of blood glucose levels.

Learning to eat pasta the light and healthy way is easy. It can also be a lot of fun — even for people who aren't fond of cooking. You'll discover that pasta tastes better when complemented with lighter sauces than drowned in rich, heavy cream sauces. Here are some basic tips:

- Avoid fatty cheeses. Stick to low-fat cheeses like part-skim mozzarella, low-fat cottage cheese, and part-skim ricotta.
- When pasta is cooked correctly there is no need to add butter to avoid sticking.
- Add more flavor with lemon juice, herbs, and spices rather than butter and cheeses.
- Instead of sauteing vegetables in high calorie fat and oils, try steaming them in a small amount of water or cooking them in a nonstick skillet lightly coated with vegetable spray. Cooked vegetables and pasta tossed with a light vinaigrette dressing create a delicious dish.
- Pasta is an excellent addition to soups, and when coupled with a fresh green salad, makes a compete meal.

ONE-STEP LASAGNE

1½ cups water
31-ounces spaghetti sauce
16-ounces lasagna noodles
1 pound ground beef

Combine water with sauce in bowl. Cover bottom of 13x9x2-inch baking dish with 1½ cups of the mixture. Arrange layer of uncooked lasagna, slightly overlapping edges. Spread half of the ricotta and half of the mozzarella, and half of the ground beef over the lasagne. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons parmesan. Add another layer of sauce and other ingredients. Top with layer of noodles. Pour remaining sauce on top, spreading evenly to cover edges of noodles. Sprinkle with ¼ cup Parmesan. Cover tightly with heavy duty foil. Set on jelly roll pan. Bake in preheated oven for 1 hour or until knife cuts easily through pasta. Let stand covered on rack 10 minutes. Serves 6.

Bradford Co. Exhibitor Dominates Poultry Competition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Rev. Roland Romig of Gillett, Bradford County, came to the Pennsylvania Farm Show well prepared. With 750 entries, he was the largest breeder of exhibition poultry at the annual show.

Romig's entries were named best of breed 56 times on the first day of competition, along with 11 class champions. He also exhibited the largest variety of geese, with 110 out of 120 entries.

Romig said he buys quality breeders from all over United States and Canada, so he's worked for good quality birds for years. His flock numbers about 5,000 and he said he spends about $500 on feed each week. He keeps about 2,000 on his own property and others keep about 3,000 for him.

He raises birds for exhibition and for selling to other breeders looking to enlarge their flocks. He also runs a baloot egg business, half hatched eggs preferred for consumption by some individuals.

Romig helped his father in the bird business since the age of eight and also worked for a large poultry exhibitor in New York, so he's got more than 40 years in the bird business. A minister for 29 years, Rev. Romig currently runs a Baptist church in Elmira, New York.

"Winter is a bad time of year for exhibitors to bring their birds out," Romis said about his dominance in the poultry competition. "Some exhibitors can no longer attend the Farm Show due to the rescheduled program, and some don't exhibit due to all the health requirements."

Rules For Cooking Contests

CHICAGO, Ill. — It takes more than luck to be a winner in a national cooking competition. Winning hinges on careful observation of contest rules and current culinary trends, as well as being able to prepare a great-tasting recipe.

Here's a summary of competition entry tips compiled by judges of the National Beef Cook-Off, which food experts recognize as one of the nation's premiere cooking competitions:

✔ Read and re-read the competition entry form, to understand all rules. Even veteran competitors tend to skim this step, which provides critical information about contest categories, judging criteria and changes from previous years.

✔ Type or clearly print a detailed version of your recipe, with instructions for all steps. Detail even the most obvious directions, such as specific equipment to use and how to test for doneness.

✔ Create a catchy, descriptive recipe title to attract judges' attention.

✔ Be sure your recipe showcases the competition's main ingredient, such as beef. Use flavors and cooking methods that complement this product.

✔ List all recipe ingredients in order of their use; indicate how many it serves.

✔ Follow your own recipe, as written, several times to be sure it includes all steps and ingredients.

✔ Ask a friend to prepare your recipe at home. See if it comes out as well from another kitchen.

✔ Keep today's cooking trends in mind, such as interest in convenient, nutritious and/or ethnic-style meals. But be realistic. Use basic preparation methods and common ingredients that are readily-available and suitable for amateur cooks.

✔ Use simple garnishes to enhance your recipe's final appearance and be sure it can withstand at least 30 minutes at room temperature (that's generally how long recipes wait to be judged).

✔ Keep trying. Winning has a lot to do with practice. Many finalists in previous National Beef Cook-Offs entered several times before their breakthroughs.

Finalists in the 1995 National Beef Cook-Off will prepare their dishes at the National Beef Cook-Off Final, to be held Sept. 21-23, 1995, in Little Rock, Arkansas. Finalists will compete for an all-time high $45,000 in cash prizes, including a $25,000 grand prize. Entries are due June 1, 1994.

For more information or an entry form, contact your state beef council or write to National Beef Cook-Off Entries, P.O. Box 3240, Chicago, Ill., 60654, or call 1-800-621-7011.

Recently I found a 1920 almanac printed by The Lititz Express. The manager, John G. Zook, states that he printed 5,000 of the nearly 150,000 distributed as there was a strike by printers in New York.

Besides the calendars there are a number of advertisements. The copy that I have was sold by P.M. Bard for ten cents. He owned a general store in Oregon, Pa. The Ideal Cocoa & Chocolate Co. of Lititz had a full page ad and so did the Farmers National Bank. Some companies sold coal, fertilizer, lumber, shoes, and jewelry.

In the classified advertising one ad stated that they would print 100 name cards for one dollar. Another listed a book "Seeing Lancaster County from a Trolley Window" — price ten cents. Another was for umbrellas, parasols and canes by Rose Bros. Umbrella Shop in Lancaster. Another person wanted to sell his barber shop with tobacco and cigar store included. Even a 170-acre farm in Virginia was listed for $6,500.

Other contents of this 1920 almanac were not only weights and measures but an article declaring what a hat tells about a woman while another explained the difference in the feet of different races — narrow and long, high arches, flat and sqaure, large, fleshy and webbed. One table showed how long foods remain in the stomach. Apples and celery were shown as 1 hour and 30 minutes while nuts and fat pork were five hours and 15 minutes.

No almanac would be complete without giving health hints. One page lists "doses for an average-sized man." Some are castor oil 1 to 8 tsp., epson salts ½ to 1 ounce, paregoric 1 tsp., turpentine 10 to 40 drops, bloodroot ¼ to ½ tsp. and quinine 1 to 10 grains.

I certainly would not recommend that any of these instructions be followed!

ANSWER — Louise Graybill requested low-fat recipes for sauces, vegetables, noodles, and meat. Thanks to a western New York reader for sending several recipes that she uses.

Whipped Cream Substitute

⅓ cup ice water

1¼ teaspoon lemon juice

½ teaspoon vanilla

⅓ cup nonfat dry milk powder

2 tablespoons sugar OR 3 packets sugar substitute

Combine water, lemon juice, and vanilla. Stir in dry milk powder. Beat 5 to 10 minutes or until stiff; add sweetner. If topping should separate, beat again just before serving.

Safflower Mayonnaise

1 egg

1 teaspoon red wine vinegar

2 teaspoons lemon juice

1 teaspoon Dijon mustard

½ teaspoon salt

¼ cup olive oil

1¼ cup safflower oil

Combine egg, vinegar, lemon juice, mustard, salt, and olive oil in blender; whirl. With machine running, add oil in a slow drizzle. Makes 1½ cups and keeps several weeks. To make herbal mayonnaise, just before serving add ½ teaspoon of basil, dill, tarragon, or parsley. This is easy and delicious, an old-fashioned tasting mayonnaise with a creamy consistency.

Hot Potato Salad

4 medium red potatoes, thinly sliced

1 cup chopped onion

3 tablespoons olive oil

2 tablespoons flour

1 teaspoon sugar or ½ packet artificial sweetener

½ teaspoon celery seed

½ teaspoon or less salt

Pepper, to taste

⅔ cup water

⅓ cup cider vinegar or flavored vinegar

Steam pototoes and onion in vegetable steamer and steam for 15-20 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Set aside. Warm oil; blend in flour, sweetner, celery seed, salt, pepper, and vinegar. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute, gently stir in potatoes and onion. Remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Fat-Free Gravy

2 cups homemade chicken or beef broth

3 tablespoons defatted meat juices and drippings (optional)

¼ cup flour

½ cup cold water

Salt and pepper, to taste

Bring broth and defatted meat drippings to a boil. Shake flour and water in a covered container to form a smooth paste; gradually add to boiling broth. Reduce heat; simmer 5 to 10 minutes, stirring constantly until thick. Season.

Note: For broth, don't substitute store-bought canned broth or bouillon — both are heavy in salt that people on low-fat diets usually avoid. To defat meat drippings, pour drippings into a bowl and add a few ice cubes. Chill in freezer for 5 to 10 minutes or until the fat congeals at the top and around the ice cubes. Discard fat and ice cubes.

Variations: For gravy that is particularly good with poultry, use 1 cup milk and 1 cup broth. To darken beef broth gravy, especially if you are not using meat drippings, add a drop or two of Gravy Master, A1 sauce or Worcestershire sauce to boiling broth.

ANSWER — Thanks to Bonnie Cooper for sending a sausage recipe for venison.

Venison Sausage

20 pounds venison, cubed

10 pounds fresh pork, cubed

2 teaspoons sugar

2 teaspoons ginger

½ pound fine salt or less

1 tablespoon black pepper

1 tablespoon white pepper

1 tablespoon red pepper

2 tablespoons sage

Run all the meat through a sausage grinder. Mix together thoroughly and divide into thirds. Set aside. In a medium bowl, mix all dry ingredients together and divide into thirds.

Spread one-third meat mixture onto table evenly and sprinkle one-third of the dry ingredients over meat.

Do the same to the other 2 parts. We do this in thirds because it is easier to mix. The sausage mix can now be stuffed into casings using a sausage stuffer or made into sausage patties.

ANSWER — Samuel Musumeci, Woodstown, N.J., had a non-cooking question. He wanted to know where to purchase coal to use in an old forge. Thanks to a reader who said the coal can be purchased at coal mines in Scranton, Williamsport, and the southern section of Pennsylvania. Soft coal works best.

Coupon Program Encourages Shopping At Farmers' Market

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has announced that in 1993, farmers redeemed some $126,324 worth of coupons from participants in the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program.

"This program, which began in 1989, has been a resounding success. Each year more and more WIC recipients are buying fresh fruits and vegetables at our farmers' markets. When we began only seven farmers' markets participated. This year 31 markets redeemed the coupons," Walker said.

"What is most encouraging for the health of our population is that surveys have shown that once WIC recipients go to a market with coupons, they return to shop at farmers' markets after their coupons run out," said Walker.

The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program began as a U.S. Department of Agriculture pilot project to expand the use and awareness of these markets and provide supplemental fruits and vegetables to WIC participants. Maryland was one of 10 states that was part of the original program. The pilot project was so successful that the U.S. Congress formerly established the coupon effort with the passage of the Farmers Market Nutrition Act of 1992.

The Maryland Farmers' Market Nutrition Program is jointly sponsored by the Maryland Departments of Agriculture and Health and Mental Hygiene. The U.S. Department of Agriculture awards grants that cover up to 70 percent of the participating state's program costs.

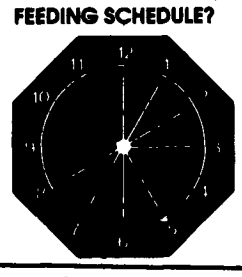
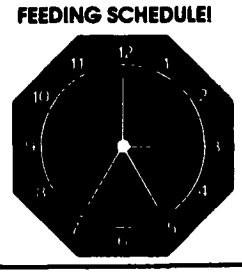
DRAG AUGER FEEDING SCHEDULE?



BIG DUTCHMAN CHAIN FEEDER FEEDING SCHEDULE!



How often do your feeders run in a day? It is generally necessary to operate drag auger feeders as many as eight or more times per day because of limited feeding space and the small quantity of feed presented at one time. That creates tremendous competition for the little feed available. The result of this competition is damaged eggs... from feet, toes and collisions. Big Dutchman chain feeders can feed your flock by running as few as three or four times a day, with little competition for feed, a calmer flock and fewer cracks and checks.

IF YOU ARE...

more than four times a day or during peak laying periods, call 911 for your egg casualties or. . . call (717) 393-5807 for information on how our chain feeder pampers your product. . . from cage to carton.

'Just For Kids Fun' At Farm Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Every year at the Farm Show there are new and more things for kids to do. Whether you go for the day or for the week, you will find plenty of activities to keep you entertained.

This year, a popular booth for kids was the Youth Against Tobacco Team. Thousands stopped by the booth to pick up colorful anti-smoking posters and pins.

The one poster featured animals smoking cigarettes and read: Never smoke cigarettes. It looks just as stupid when you do it.

The other poster had a bunch of animal butts on it. The caption read: Butts are gross.

Visitors could exchange a hat, T-shirt or any article of clothing that was part of tobacco promotion for a new one with an anti-smoking message.

Kids were encouraged to sign a pledge to become a member of the Youth Against Tobacco and promise not to use any tobacco products, including cigarettes, cigars, pipes, and smokeless tobacco. They also promised to encourage others not to use tobacco products.

Did you know:

- that tobacco is the leading preventable cause of death in the U.S., killing about 500,000 Americans a year.
- tobacco contains nicotine that is an addicting drug just like heroin or cocaine.
- tobacco is the only product that when used as the manufacturer intends causes disease and death.
- smoking kills more people in a year than AIDS, cocaine, heroin, alcohol, fires, automobile accidents, homicide, and suicide combined.
- About 90 percent of all smokers begin smoking before they are 18 years old.

You can receive many more facts and information about Youth Against Tobacco Campaign, by writing to Pa. Dept. of Health, Div. of Health Promotion, Tobacco Control Program, P.O. Box 90, Harrisburg, PA 17108. 1 (800) 692-7254.

Cheryl Wieder of the Pa. Department of Health wears a duck hat as she warns kids against using tobacco.

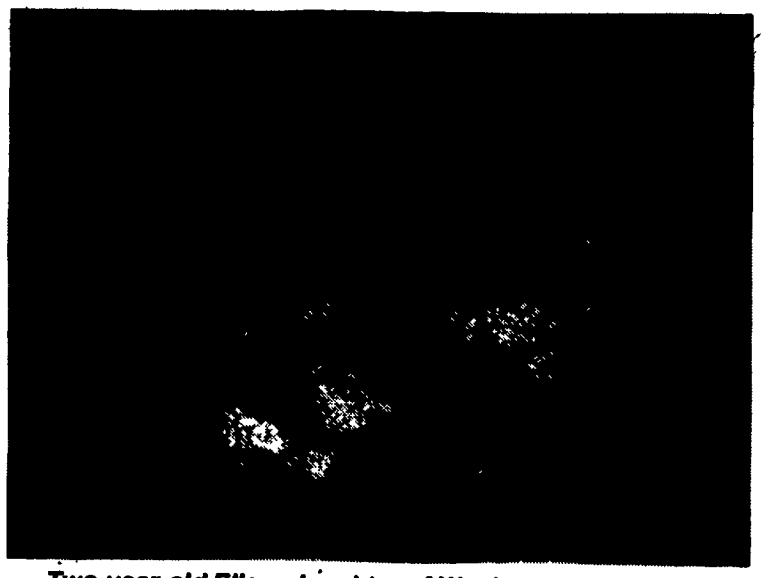
"Why didn't the skeleton cross the street?" Timmy Rudderow asks the audience. The answer: He didn't have the guts to do it.

Bashful pig. He likes to talk with children, but he doesn't like to have his picture taken.

"Hey, you woke me up," said Tony Mase, 7, who with his sister Alicia, 9, was trying to find some naptime on the hay bales. Parents are Gary and Patty Mase of Lebanon who show dairy animals.

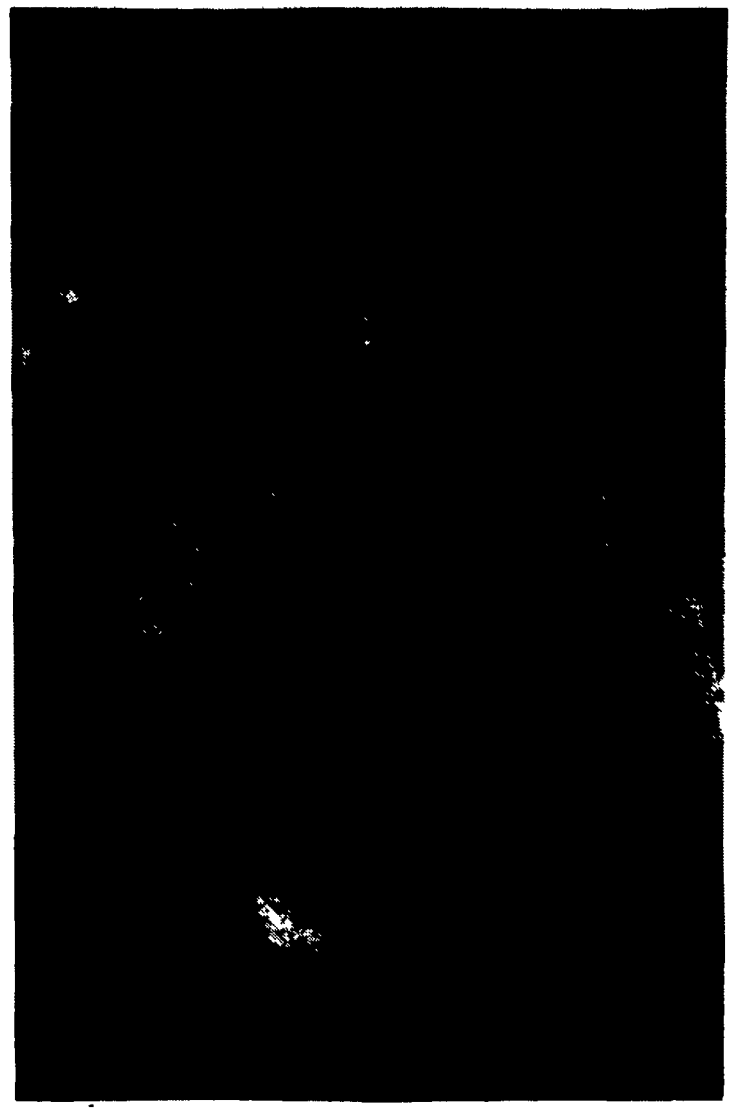
Joseph Lee Rutt, 6, and his brother Austin, 1, hold up the poster that shows animals smoking cigarettes. "You shouldn't smoke," Joseph said, "because it looks stupid and it isn't good for you." The boys are the sons of Leonard and Marlene Rutt of Denver.

Four-year-old Josh samples some of the apple pies that were cut and served to the audience during the contest. With him are his parents, William and Paula Anderson, and a sister, Meagan, 9.



Two-year-old Ellen, daughter of Wesley and Sharon Harpold of Myerstown, finds it delightful to pet the Dorset lamb held by Kim Evans.

When you're at the Farm Show and it's time to eat, kids find any space they can. These plopped down on the hallway floor to eat French fries. From left, Lauren, 4; Heather, 3, and Renee, 7. They are the children of Rodney and Lisa Fraker of Landisburg, Perry County. The children's grandparents, who are beef farmers, bring them to the Farm Show every year.



This play house with a fire pole for kids to slide down attracted large groups of kids during Farm Show week. Shown are the children of Kurt and Lu Ann Brubaker of Fivepointville: Tina, 9, and Diane 6, with Ricky Eckert, 6, son of John and Janine Eckert of Schoneck.

Milk Promotion Goes 'Phanatical'

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Milk promotion went "Phanatical" at the Farm Show this week when the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) unveiled and introduced their new baseball star that will be featured in milk commercials and visit elementary schools to increase saging sales of milk to young students.

Yes, the new star is the big, green furry Phillie Phanatic, who appeared Sunday at the MAMMA booth in the main exhibition hall and was joined by "Molly Moo" the pink cow, Jennifer Grimes, state dairy princess and Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary. All these impromptu stars played their role well and had the large crowd caughing and clapping with their antics.

In addition to the introduction of milk promption's new baseball star, the participants introduced the "Dariy Derby" game show that was part of the exhibition.

"Dairy Derby" is the Hollywood-style game show created by MAMMA to educate consumers about the dairy industry and dairy products.

Contestants were selected from the crowd at the MAMMA booth, #348, in the Main Exhibition Hall, and competed by answering dairy

Suffolk Ram Claims Supreme Champion Title

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Suffolk ram "Lynee" was chosen as the Supreme Champion for sheep at the 78th Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

The one-year-old ram beat out a ewe named "Alm" showed by Amanda Lynn Miller of Mertztown, Berks County, for the title.

The award winning ram was shown by Gerald and Susan Clair of Lyn Lee Farm, State College, Centre County.

"The ram has a beautiful head and stands well on its feet and legs," judge Mike Driscoll of Elora, Ontario, Canada said. "He has a long loin and hind saddle and has good overall length."

"Lynlee", a spring ram lamb, placed second at the Ohio State Fair last year.

The Dorset division was dominated by Dr. Robert D. Herr of Narvon, Lancaster County. Representing Bradford Farms, Dr. Herr had both the Ram and Ewe champion in the division. "Nix Besser 242" was the winning ram and "Nix Besser 110" was the ewe. Ironically, nix besser means no better in German.

In the Hampshire division, Stacy Suffel of State College, Centre County, showed the grand champion ram named "Hope". In just her second year of competition at the Farm Show, 12-year-old Josey Fought of Carlisle, Cumberland County, was named the premier exhibitor at the open Hampshire show. Also her ewe named "Suffel" earned first place honors.

Josey, a seventh grade student at Cumberland Valley Middle School, is a member of the Conodoquinet 4-H Sheep Club. When she's not helping her family's Sulfur Run Farm, she enjoys rollerblading and ice skating.

Amanda Lynn Miller of Mertztown, Berks County, showed both the ram and ewe grand champions in the Southdown division. "Alm 9301" was chosen as the grand champion ram and "Alm 9203" the grand champion ewe.

"Lynee" was chosen as the grand champion ram in the Suffolk division while "Mariah" was the champion ewe. Both animals were shown by Gerald and Susan Clair from Lyn Lee Farm of State College, Centre County.

Champion ewe "Mariah" was awarded first place honors at the Ohio State Fair and placed second in the Junior Lamb division at the North American Livestock show in Louisville, Kentucky.

Wey Shropshires of Kutztown, Berks County, showed both the grand champion ram and ewe for the Shropshire division.

In the Cheviot division "Erd Lad" of Erdenheim Farm in Lafayette Hill, Montgomery County, was named grand champion ram. The grand champion ewe "Erd" was shown by Join Eaton of Windsor, York County.

The MAMMA School Milk Initiative was developed and launched in late 1993 to halt the decreasing sale of milk in the Middle-Atlantic schools and to focus on increasing milk sales among young students.

MAMMA has selected the Philadelphia School District to launch the School Milk Initiative because the district's school milk sales have steadily decreased in the past ten years. Also, with nearly 112,000 elementary students there is significant growth potential of the school milk market in this district.

School milk sales across the MAMMA market are for the most part at an all time low, a crisis that demands a comprehensive marketing plan as MAMMA has developed for the Philadelphia School Milk Promotion.

With MAMMA as the coordinator and funding agency for the Philadelphia School Milk promotion and with a number of partners contributing their efforts, there is a tremendous opportunity to increase school milk sales in 1994.

MAMMA's goal is to double the number of students currently eating school breakfast, which could generate 500,000 gallons in additional school milk sales for the year. The USDA requires that each breakfast includes a half-pint of milk.

To encourage student participation, MAMMA, working jointly with Joan Nachmani, Coordinator of Dietetic Services and Thomas McGlinchy, School Food Service Director, has developed an extensive "I Love Milk and Breakfast" contest involving all 183 elementary schools and all of the 111,500 students.

The contest will be conducted March 7 through 11, 1994, but festivities to get students eating school breakfast will begin February 14 and continue throughout contest week with school visits by the Philadelphia Phanatic.

The Phanatic will visit more than 30 schools reaching nearly 23,000 students, to help create enthusiasm among the students for the school breakfast.

To extend the promotion to all schools which are not being visited by the Phanatic, each school will receivel a Phanatic/Darren Daulton growth poster and students at all schools will be eligible to win baseball tickets for MAMMA's Dairy Day with the Phillies on Sunday, May 22.

Nearly 11,000 prizes will be awarded to students:

— 1,830 students will receive 2 tickets to the May 22 Phillies game.

— 9,150 students will receive Daulton/Phanatic growth posters on May 23.

In addition, each of the 111,500 students will receive a bookcover that carries a nutritional/dairy message. Balford Farms, the distributor of school milk in the Philadelphia School District, will be delivering all of the bookcovers to the schools during their regular milk deliveries.

School Food Service employees and other school VIP's will be MAMMA's guests at the Phillies baseball game on Sunday, May 22, in recognition of their efforts in bringing nutritional meals to the children they serve each day.

MAMMA's goal is to repeat this promotion in the larger school districts of Washington, D.C. and Baltimore County in the next two years.

Grandson Of Founder Addresses Farm Women's State Convention

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Snow, ice, and sleet dimmed the attendance but not the spirit of the 75th annual state convention for The Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania on Monday. About 265 of the society's 3,148 members braved traveling conditions to attend the convention held in the State Forum building during the morning and afternoon sessions and at the Penn Harris Motor Inn for the evening banquet.

Highlight of the convention was a presentation by Frank S. Black Jr. who is the grandson of Flora Black, the founder of the Society of Farm Women in 1914. Flora started the organization in her Somerset County home. Flora loved farming and believed that farm women had more to offer the community than what they had time to do.

In the beginning, the men visited outside while the women gathered in the home for the monthly meetings.

Black said that it was unusual for men to support women in independent pursuits such as these during the early 1914s. Among his grandmother's many pursuits, she was active in the Women's Suffrage Society, the American Red Cross, Pa. Historical Committee, the Daughters of the American Revolution, Geneological Society and others. Black said, "But she was most proud of her association with Farm Women."

Frank related several feisty stories told about his grandmother that reflected her indomitable spirit. After his grandmother had planted a knoll with blackberry bushes, a public road was slated to run through the 230-acre farm. His grandmother raised such a fuss about the proposed road destroying her blackberry bushes that public officials diverted the road around the bushes. This created a 90-degree curve in the road that, according to Black, everyone is still paying for today because it has created a graveyard of danger for motorists.

He said that no one ever questioned his grandmother's beliefs. She often complained that all the cats in the world could not rid the family's massive frame house of the mice that lived in the walls. She released a black snake in the basement because, she believed, it would rid the house of snakes. According to her kin, the snake feasted on mice for weeks and would occasionally slither outside in search of more food. One day his mother returned home to find a visiting minister killing the snake.

"They say that my grandmother horsewhipped him (the minister) down the road, and I believe it," her grandson reported.

In the business session, Arlene Witman, president of the state organization for the past three years, handed the reins of leadership to Dottie Stricker.

Of her association with the society, Arlene said, "Farm Women left footprints on my heart and I will never be the same."

During her term, Arlene set three goals for members by telling them that the key to happiness is caring and sharing. During the first year of her term, members were encouraged to spread happiness in their neighborhoods; the second year, in their communities; and the third year, by raising money for the Heifer Project International, which provides a food-producing animal to poverty-stricken communities. Recipients then give the first female offspring to another family in need.

Farm Women members exceeded the $9,000 goal by raising $11,876 for the heifer project.

In addition to installing Dottie Stricker as president, other new officers include Darleen Schmeltz, treasurer; Audrey Gilbert, secretary; Lois Hughes, first vice president; Catherine Schott, second vice president; and Gladys Meyers, Barbara Malehorn, and Barbara Nissley as directors.

"There's nothing I like to talk about more than the scholarship fund," Naomi Bupp told fellow members. Bupp, who is in charge of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women Cookbook, reported that 17,500 cookbooks have been sold as it goes into its eighth printing. Profit from the sales goes into the scholarship fund. Bupp presented a $6,000 check to the Farm Women for this year's profits.

Frank S. Black Jr., grandson of the founder of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania, told stories about his grandmother during the annual banquet.

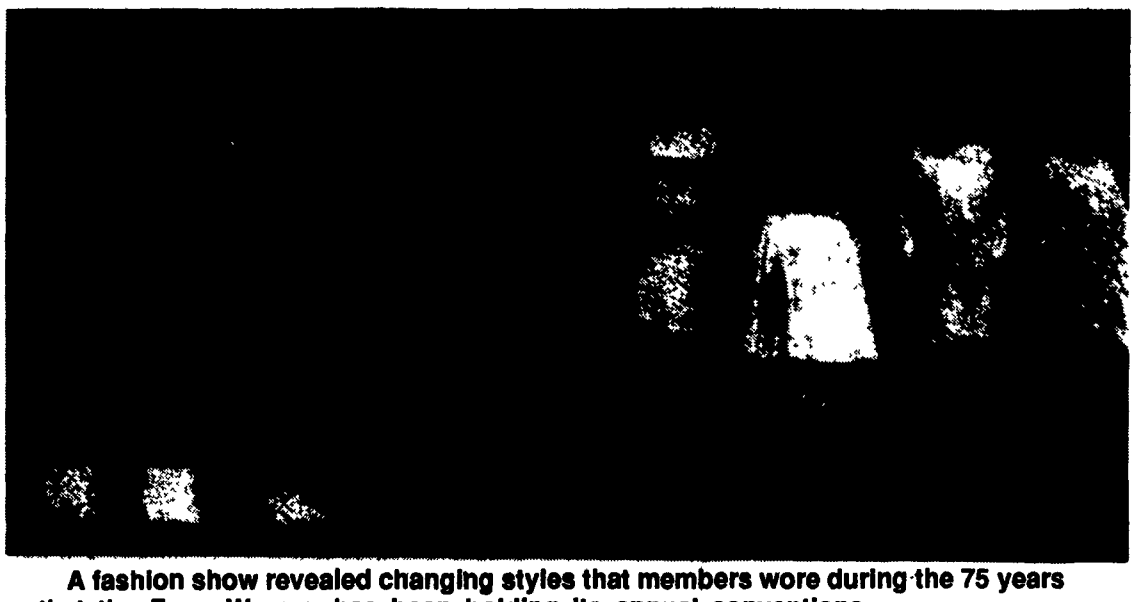
The famous Pennsylvania Farm Women Cookbook, with 17,500 copies sold, is going into its eighth printing. Naomi Bupp said profits from sales amounted to an additional $6,000 to be used for the scholarship fund.

During her address to Farm Women members, Jennifer Grimes, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, told how hard work on the farm established lasting values in her perception of life.



A fashion show revealed changing styles that members wore during the 75 years that the Farm Women has been holding its annual conventions.

State Convention

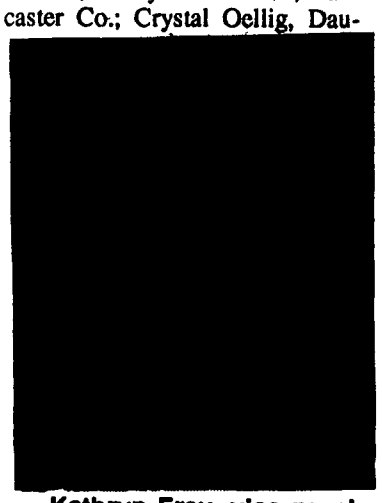
This past year, five $1,000 scholarships were given to students who are the children or grandchildren of members and are pursuing a home economics major. The recipients are Amy Fyock, Lancaster Co.; Kathy Esbenshade, Lancaster Co.; Crystal Oellig, Dauphin Co.; Tammy Dawson, Berks Co.; and Christine Habecker, Lebanon Co.

In celebration of its 75th convention, a fashion show was staged to reflect the different ideas, perspectives, and styles that transpired in members' lives.

Barbara Valavanes, who came to the U.S. with her father as a political refugee from Greece, inspired members to take their citizenship more seriously and to be worthy of citizenship.

Special music was provided by the Gettysburg Ensemble, and by Carl and Dorothy Shull.

County presidents reported on activities each society participated in during the past year.



Kathryn Frey, vice president of Lancaster County Farm Women and jewelry custodian for the state organization, displays jewelry with the Farm Women's insignia.

Cooking For Fun At Farm Show '94

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 29 students from Harrisburg Area Community College participated in the cooking demonstrations at this years Pennsylavania Farm Show.

This is the fourth year HACC students have provided spectators with a myriad of recipes to not only observe being cooked, but best of all getting to taste a little sample of the finished product.

Maraca Shore, a certified culinary educator at the college, has been the chief instructor for all four years. Thanks to the Department of Agriculture, according to Shore, this year has definitely been one of the best on record.

"This year is wonderful, I think I've died and gone to heaven, she said. "The first year we had no ovens or preparation area to work with, so we had to drive back-and-forth to HACC after each display. This year we have everything we could possibly need and it's just wonderful."

Each of the 29 students hand-picked a recipe which to cook. It doesn't matter what type of recipe you're looking for, whether it's a dessert, main course or soup and salad, there's a recipe for you.

In sticking with the theme of the Farm Show, the majority of each of the recipes is prepared with products from Pennsylvania.

Thirty-six-year-old Tom Anderson is one of the students taking part. He prepared a chicken cerubi dish and served about 100 people.

"The selection of the dish was totally my choice," Anderson said. "I first narrowed it down to a chicken then selected this particular dish from over a thousand recipes.

"The whole theme was to be able to use Pennsylvania products," he added. "In my dish for example the peas are from Hanover, the wine is from Nissley Vineyards and the chicken is produced in here in the state."

Even though Shore is a full-time instructor at HACC, her work at the Farm Show is strictly voluntary.

"I get a great deal of satisfaction seeing the students grow," she said. "All we are doing is taking excellent products that Pennsylvania puts out and giving the people a chance to see and taste those products in a working environment."

In addition to the HACC students, a delegation of students from Indiana University of Pennsylvania is also taking part in the exhibition.

QUICK SAUCY CHICKEN STIR-FRY

2 tablespoons oil
1 cup broccoli flowerets
1 cup cauliflowerets
¾ cup 2-inch julienne carrots
¼ cup sliced green onions
3 chicken breast filets, cut into 1-inch pieces
½ cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing
½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 clove of garlic, minced

Heat 1 tablespoon oil over medium-heat in skillet or wok. Add broccoli, cauliflower, carrots, green onions and garlic. Stir-fry for 4-5 minutes or until tender-crisp; remove to warm platter. Add remaining 1 tablespoon oil. Stir-fry chicken for 4 minutes or until tender; remove from heat. Add cooked vegetables, salad dressing, ginger and soy sauce, stirring well to mix. Serve over hot cooked rice. Yield: 4 servings.

RAINBOW TROUT SANDWICH SPREAD

1 7¾ ounce can trout (or flaked trout)
1 package cream cheese, softened (3 ounces)
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
3 to 4 dashes Tabasco sauce
Sourdough or Pumpernickel rounds

Drain trout; remove any large bones. Mix cream cheese, Worcestershire and tabasco sauces until smooth. Fold in trout. Spread on bread rounds to serve. Makes 1 cup spread.

FLUFFY PEANUT BUTTER PIE

½ cup peanut butter
1 cup powdered sugar
9 ounce cool whip (thawed)
¼ cup finely chopped peanuts (optional)
8 ounce cream cheese (softened)
½ cup milk
9-inch pie crust

In mixer: Whip cheese until soft and fluffy, beat in peanut butter and sugar. Slowly add milk. Fold cool whip into mixture. Pour into prepared crust. Freeze until firm and serve. (for storage longer than 4 to 6 hours, wrap the pie well for freezing.)

LAMB WITH CREAMY ALMOND SAUCE OF BEEF WITH CREAMY ALMOND SAUCE

8 cloves of peeled garlic
1 inch cube of fresh ginger, peeled and coarsely chopped or grated
5 tablespoons blanched, slivered almonds (small pkg. found in baking section of grocery store)
7 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 pounds boned lamb from the shoulder or leg or stewing beef (chuck), cut into 1 inch cubes
10 whole cardamom pods
6 whole cloves
1 inch stick of cinnamon
2 medium onions, peeled and finely chopped
1 teaspoon ground coriander seeds
2 teaspoons ground cumin seeds
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garam masala
1 cup of water +/-
1¼ cups heavy cream

Put the garlic, ginger, almonds, and 6 tablespoons of water into the container of an electric blender. Blend until you have a paste.

Heat the oil in a wide, heavy, preferably non-stick pot over a medium-high flame. When hot, put in just enough meat pieces so they lie, uncrowded, in a single layer. Brown the meat pieces on all sides, then remove them with a slotted spoon and put them in a bowl. Brown all the meat this way.

Put the cardamom pods, cloves, and cinnamon into the hot oil. Within seconds the cloves will expand. Now put in the onions. Stir and fry the onions until they turn a brownish color. Turn the heat down to medium. Put in the paste from the blender as will as the coriander, cumin, and cayenne. Stir and fry this mixture for 3 to 4 minutes or until it too has browned somewhat.

Now put in the meat cubes as well as any liquid that might have accumulated in the meat bowl, the salt, the cream, and 1/2 cup water. If you are cooking beef, add another 1/2 cup water. Bring to a boil. Cover, turn heat to low and simmer lamb for 1 hour and beef for 2 hours or until the meat is tender. Stir frequently during this cooking period. Skim off any fat that floats to the top.

OLD-FASHIONED CHEESECAKE

This is the grand dame of cheesecakes - big, rich, almost indescribably delicious.

Butter Crust, see below
5 (8 ounce) packages cream cheese, Fleur-de-lait, room temperature
1½ cups sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
6 eggs
½ cup heavy cream or whipping cream
Sour Cream Topping, see below
1 quart fresh strawberries, hulled, cut in half

Butter Crust:
1½ cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
⅔ cup cold butter or margarine
1 egg
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract

Sour Cream Topping:
1½ cups dairy sour cream
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon brandy

Prepare Butter Crust: set aside. Reduce oven temperature to 325 degrees F (165 degrees C). In a large bowl, beat cream cheese by hand or with electric mixer on medium speed until smooth and fluffy. In a small bowl, stir sugar, flour, lemon peel, salt and nutmeg to combine. Gradually blend flour mixture into beaten cream cheese. Blend vanilla and eggs in a small bowl. Slowly beat egg mixture into cream cheese mixture until just blended. Stir in cream until just blended. Pour evenly into prepared Butter Crust. Smooth top with the back of a spoon. Bake 1¼ hours in preheated oven until a knife inserted halfway between center and edge comes out clean. While cheesecake bakes, prepare Sour Cream Topping. Remove cheesecake from oven. Turn off heat. Spread topping over cheesecake. Leaving oven door ajar several inches, return cheesecake to oven for 1 hour to slowly cool. Place on a rack on counter to cool 15 minutes. Use the blade of a thin knife to loosen crust from side of pan. Do not remove side of pan. Cover and refrigerate until chilled, about 1 hour. Remove pan side. Return to refrigerator until served. To serve, spoon strawberries over cheesecake. Makes 18-20 servings.

Butter Crust:

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F (205 degrees C). Combine flour and sugar in a small bowl. With a pastry blender or 2 knives, cut in butter or margarine until crumbs are the size of small peas. In a second small bowl beat egg and vanilla. Stir into flour mixture until a smooth ball forms. Press half of pastry over bottom of a 9-inch springform pan. Bake bottom crust 8 minutes in preheated oven. Cool on a rack 10 minutes. Grease side of springform pan. Fasten in place. Press remaining pastry around side of pan touching baked bottom crust.

Sour Cream Topping:

Combine all ingredients in a small bowl.

MILKING STALLS

Using less stalls at maximum efficiency lowers the total cost of your automation and improves labor efficiency. Comparison shows it takes as much as 50% fewer AutoFlow stalls to achieve the same throughput as with similarly automated herringbone and parallel systems.

As milking equipment becomes more sophisticated and more expensive, the investment per stall becomes an important factor. The Surge AutoFlow parlor maximizes efficiencies per stall without sacrificing cow throughput.

Bennecoffs Clinch Farm Show Swine Championship

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Bennecoff family has shown at countless KILE, Allentown Fair, and other shows throughout the country. But they triumphed for the first time at the Pennsylvania Farm Show last Saturday when they finally picked up a grand championship with their Hampshire, a "really big-scaled gilt, which has a good underline, good udder, and good length," according to Jack Rodibaugh, Rensselaer, Ind., show judge.

Todd Bennecoff, Kutztown, exhibited TDB3 MS Bell Star 1-5, a January gilt, to the championship of the Hampshire breed class and the farm show open swine show championship.

Following are the winners of each class by show order.

Berkshires

The Bennecoffs, which include Todd, Cheryl, son Todd, Jr. and daughter Justine, also swept the Berkshire class.

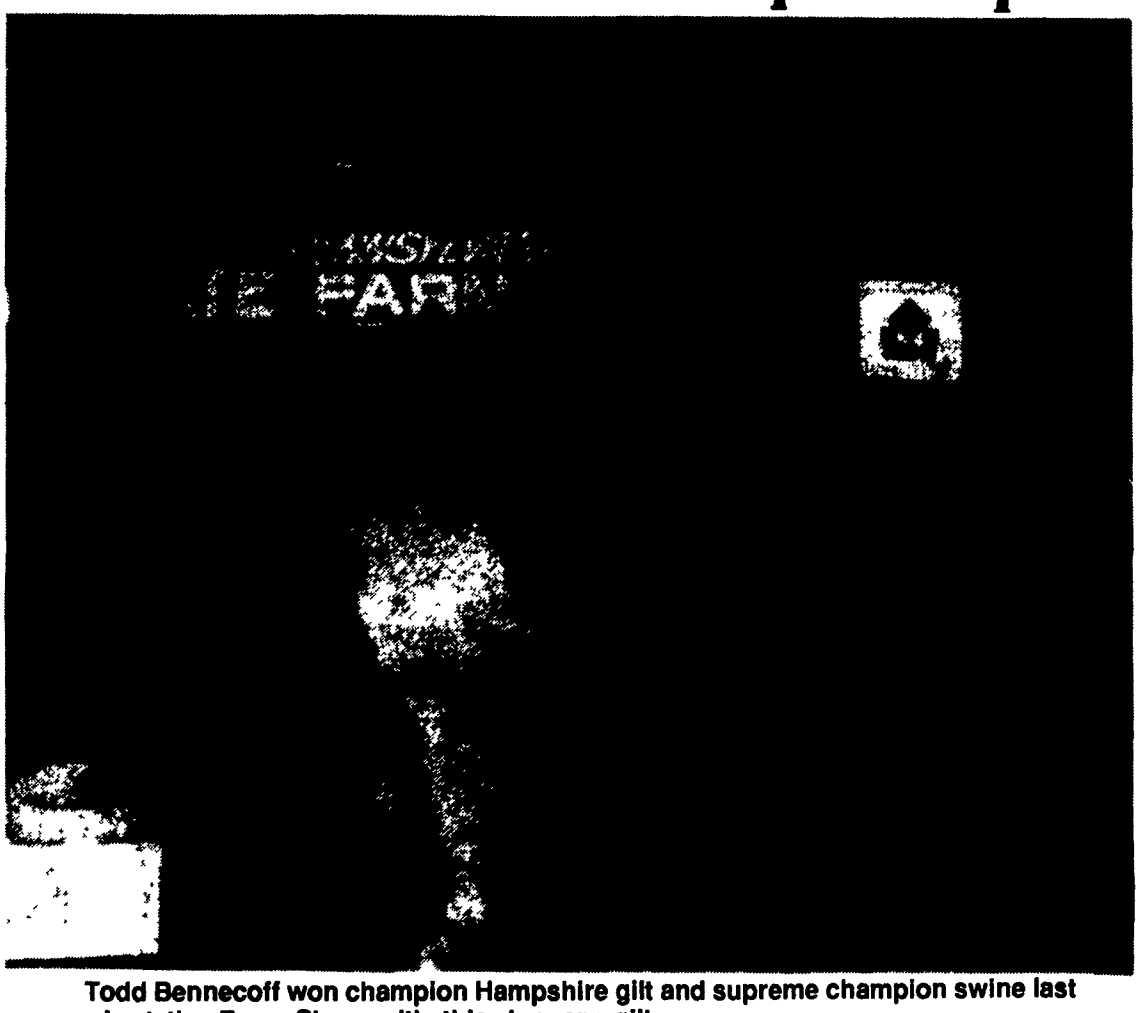
The ability of a hog to walk free and easy with a lot of evenness and strength down the top are what the breed industries look for in a gilt, and this applies especially well to the Berkshire championship class, according to Rodibaugh. Champion of the class went to TLB3 Miss Conan 4-7.

The Bennecoffs also picked up reserve champion with a gilt that was "nicely balanced and moves off her front end better than the other gilts out there," said Rodibaugh. Bennecoffs showed a January gilt to reserve, TLB3 Miss Combination.

Chester Whites

"Where can you buy a pound of balance?" asked Rodibaugh, who explained that balance is hard obtain unless control is maintained in feed and other factors. The January gilt had a lot more in one package than other two she competed against, according to the judge. "You can't feed them or push them hard if they don't have the length of body," said Rodibaugh. Again, the breed wants length and freedom of movement in the gilts.

As a result, champion was awarded to a January gilt, TM3 Diane M S93 4-1, shown by James T. Parlett and Son, Airville. The Parletts swept the class, also picking up reserve with TM3 Ann T II S93, a February gilt. The reserve had the "trendy" characteristics for breeds, said Rodibaugh, which include "longevity, and length of neck and rump up," he said. "She moves free and easy, and has a lot of longevity which can go a lot down the road for the breed."



Todd Bennecoff won champion Hampshire gilt and supreme champion swine last week at the Farm Show with this January gilt.

Chester White champion went to James T. Parlett and Son, Airville.

Durocs

Like the reserve champion gilt shown in the class, the champion gilt, shown by Donald Chambers for Dennis Chambers, was a "well-balanced" gilt with a lot of squareness in shoulders and down the top, the most lean gilt in the class.

Champion went to 3 Bell S90 1-7, a January gilt. Reserve champion of the class was the second January gilt, shown by Clyde McConaughey, Smicksburg, who showed CM3 MS Babe Rutt 4-4.

Hampshires

The champion gilt from the Hampshire breed class, shown by Todd Bennecoff, Kutztown, is a "really big-scaled gilt," said Rodibaugh. Bennecoff exhibited TDB3 MS Bell Star 1-5.

Reserve champion showed good bone, scale, balance, and freedom of movement in front and rear, according to Rodibaugh. Reserve was shown by Darren Grumbine and Brian Eisenhour, Miss SP85 1-4, from Myerstown.

Landrace

Fine Fleece Fanciers Weave Their Way To Victory

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Fine Fleece Fanciers of Bedford County captured top honors — and the most money for their shawl - at the Farm Show Sheep to Shawl contest. Held at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, the show is the largest indoor agricultural exhibition in North America.

Members of the Fine Fleece Fanciers include Karl Kaufman of Alum Bank, weaver; Laurie Bero of Alum Bank, spinner; Steven Bero of Alum Bank, spinner; Elissa Henderson of Schellsburg, spinner; Tracey Henderson of Schellsburg, shearer.

The team has competed at the Farm Show for two years. They have also done demonstrations at Bedford County Sheep and Wool Day and the Bedford County Fair.

Three teams competed in the contest this year. Hill and Hollow Handspinners, the second place team, includes Ginny Mutti of Alexandria, Huntingdon County, weaver; Jan Ott and Barbara Barlow of Orbisonia, Huntingdon County, spinners; Helen Clusman of McConnellsburg, Fulton County, spinner; and Tommy Junkin of Willow Hill, Franklin County, shearer.

The third team to compete in the contest, Woolie and Wild Weaving and Spinning, includes Harold Schwanger of Hershey, Dauphin County, weaver; Lynn and John Zerphey of Halifax, Dauphin County, spinners; Sue Ellen Gates, Elizabethtown, Lancaster County, spinner; and Chris Herr of Camp Hill, Cumberland County, shearer.

The contest begins with each team shearing a sheep. The wool is carded and spun, then woven on a loom. Points are awarded for speed, shearing, spinning, weaving, design and team identification.

In addition to the premiums awarded to the teams, special awards are made for innovation of design, color and skill of the weaver, the quality of the workmanship and cooperative spirit of the three spinners within a team, the skill and handling of sheep by the shearer, and for the fleece used.

Immediately following the judging, the auctioning of the shawls created during the contest took place. The first place shawl was sold to M.H. Eby of Blue Ball and Sam Beegle of Sam Beegle Stables in Gap for $450. The second place shawl went for $300 to Robert Miller of Pleasant Valley Angus in Lebanon. The third place shawl was also sold for $300 to Pete Barley of Palmyra.

The purpose of the Sheep to Shawl contest is to promote the sheep and wool industry in Pennsylvania. By providing an opportunity for regional craftspersons, the evening's event not only educates the public on one of Pennsylvania's agricultural products, but also provides for an evening of fun and entertainment.

The event is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association.

First place winners in the Sheep to Shawl Contest went to Fine Fleece Fanciers of Bedford County. Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff is shown with the winning team.

Computers Friends To Cows

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Computers, satellites in the sky, and other modern-day technology will play bigger roles on farms in the future, as well as in business and the home.

U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists say farmers, for example, will be able to detect animal diseases faster and protect crops using less pesticide.

Someday, a dairy cow may alert the farmer by "radio" that she's coming down with mastitis, a bacterial infection of the udder that cuts milk production. A tiny sensor, placed harmlessly in the udder, records the cow's temperature. A miniature radio transmitter relays the data to a computer every 15 minutes.

Agricultural Research Service (ARS) scientists in USDA say temperature changes often signal the onset of disease, but the new system can sense a problem before symptoms appear. That could reduce health costs and speed the cow's recovery.

ARS scientists have put the computer to work in a different way to combat boll weevils. In the 100 years since this pest invaded the United States and began attacking cotton, growers have tried just about everything on them, including walking through fields to see if the number of weevils is high or low — spraying an insecticide only when the weevil population appears to threaten the crop.

Now, in Mississippi, scouting the fields has taken a new form — an electronic surveillance that appears to be successful.

Here's how it works: Every two weeks during the growing season, two-thirds of the states' cotton growers count up the boll weevils snared in traps placed in their fields. This data, from all over the state, is relayed to an ARS lab. There, scientists use a computer to make color-coded maps of weevil population densities. Scientists, extension agents, and growers then rely on the maps to figure out the best weevil-control strategy, including less use of insecticide.

Other agency scientists in south Texas are operating computers to generate maps from satellite data. These maps can help farmers, for example, measure the size of weed infestations that ruin grazing land and work out ways to control the weeds. Satellite-based maps also have supplied the first good information on the status of the Gulf Coast's black mangrove shrubs, which guard against shoreline erosion and provide homes for wildlife.

That's a sampling of how technology is being put to work for agriculture and the environment. At the same time, the research also is paying off for the public — such as an ARS computer system that predicts the outbreak of mosquitoes so steps can be taken to snuff them out before they can make life miserable.

Scooper Bowl

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The second annual Farm Show "Scooper Bowl," the all-you-can-eat ice cream paradise, hosted more than 1,000 ice cream lovers, raising $3,470 for Pennsylvania youngsters suffering from cancer. The "Scooper Bowl" was held Sunday, January 9.

The event was sponsored by Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners — the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid-East UDIA/F.O. 36 Advertising and Promotions Agency, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program — and followed similar activities held in Boston, Massachusetts and Syracuse, New York.

Volunteers from the Four Diamonds Fund of the Hershey Medical Center kept busy collecting money and scooping ice cream as Farm Show-goers poured into the event. A media ice cream media contest featured local media celebrities, hand-churning their own homemade ice cream creations. WGAL-TV 8 won first place with their Chocolate-Cookie-Nut ice cream. WNNK-FM radio and WQLV-FM radio came in second and third respectively with their creations, Minty "Wink'y Wacky ice cream and Petrified ice cream. Children from the Four Diamonds Fund joined the media teams.

The Four Diamonds Fund raises approximately 99 percent of their funds from community organizations and events. Annually, the fund supports over 250 children with cancer. The fund supports children and families by providing 100 percent coverage of hospital bills not covered by family insurance.

Additional monies from the fund are used to support programs at the medical center including children's cancer research. The fund was created to provide families with support for the tremendous financial burden from hospitalization.

Pennsylvania ice cream companies donated products and volunteered their time for the event. Companies included: Coleman's Ice Cream of Lancaster; Hershey Ceamery Company of Harrisburg; Jack & Jill Ice Cream Company of Bensalem/ and Turkey Hill Dairy of Conestoga.

Pennsylvania's ice cream industry is the second largest in the country. The state's abundance of fresh cream and milk makes Pennsylvania an excellent location for ice cream manufacturing. Pennsylvania's Citizens are also known as ice cream connoisseurs and the "Scooper Bowl" offered the public another opportunity to sample new products as well as old favorites.

Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners have been collectively promoting dairy products for the state's dairy farmers since 1989.

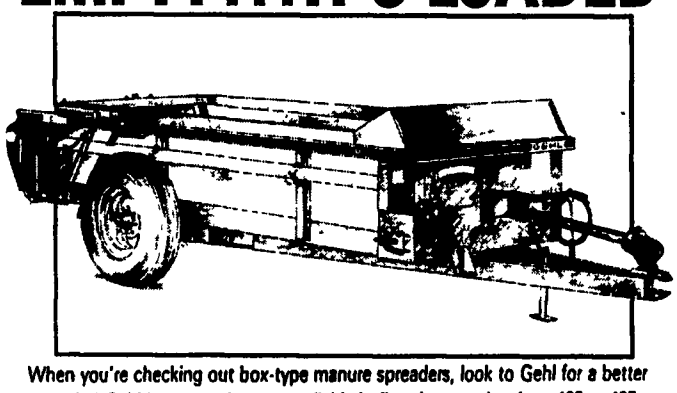
GEHL

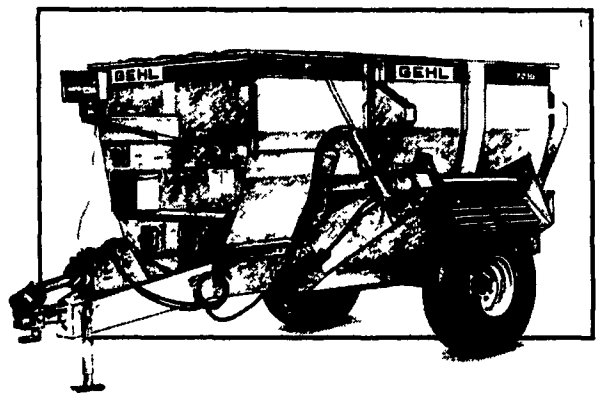
EVEN WHEN IT'S EMPTY...IT'S LOADED



When you're checking out box-type manure spreaders, look to Gehl for a better spreader! Gehl box spreaders are available in five sizes ranging from 135 to 425 bushel heaped capacities. Gehl box spreaders deliver these and many more advanced features:

- Gehl-Tuff flooring is slippery so manure slides out easily.
- T-bar apron chains are extra-strong for durability.
- Galvanized steel sides are more corrosion resistant.
- Single or tandem axle models available.
- 10-year warranty on sides and floors.
- Hydraulic apron drive (optional) to match your specific application needs.

GEHL TMR MIXER FEEDERS ARE #1



Nothing makes a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action – Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy Efficient – Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built To Last – Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Six Sizes – 150 to 500 cubic feet capacities
- Three Styles – Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation.

First KILE, Now Farm Show Beef Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An Angus junior yearling heifer that won grand champion of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) last year became supreme champion beef heifer on Monday at the Farm Show.

The animal, an early junior yearling heifer, Indian Creek Della (S:Da Es Ro Casey, D: Indian Creek Delores), is the result of five years of "breeding the right cows to the right bulls," said Richard Wilson, exhibiting for Indian Creek Farm, Stahlstown.

According to Wilson, this was the first grand champion beef animal for Indian Creek at the Farm Show. The animal's genetic line came from Ontario, Canada, according to the exhibitor.

Grand champion overall bull went to an early summer yearling Limousin bull exhibited by Sugar Maple and Courtney Church, Dayton.

Both the Angus and Limousin overall champions competed against other breeds, including Charolais, Polled Herefords, and Simmentals.

Reserve grand in the Angus heifer show was awarded to Weaverland Valley Farms, New Holland, for KJC Senorita Carlotta, an early junior yearling heifer. Bull grand champion in the Angus division went to Mt. Valley Angus, Lititz, for Mt. Valley Dutchman, an April junior yearling bull. Reserve bull went to Stockdale, Graystone, Dayton, for GS Applause, an early junior yearling bull.

The grand champion Charolais heifer went to KC Acres, Abbottstown, exhibited by Travis Sherman, for KC Alyss 28. Reserve went to Ray and Mary Grimes, McKnightstown, for SMF Joy 221. Both were early spring yearling females.

Grand champion Charolais bull went to Dunkard Valley Farm, Dallastown, for DVF Pound Maker B22, a summer yearling bull. Reserve went to the summer senior yearling bull, HTF Tall Cool Saphire, exhibited by Glenn Turk, Warren.

Polled Hereford grand champion heifer went to Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, for SBF Royal Duchess 9209, a late junior yearling heifer. Reserve went to Salunga Acres, Mount Joy, for Louada TS Lass 45B, from the same class.

Grand champion Polled Hereford bull went to Salunga Acres for an early summer yearling bull, Salunga Baron 54B. Reserve went to Spring Bottom Farm for a senior bull calf, SBF Royal Rancher 9215.

In the Simmental division, grand champion heifer was awarded to Dodi Johnson, Ligonier, for LVF B 11 Valley Girl, a late junior yearling heifer. Reserve went to Joseph Messick, Middletown.

Simmental bull grand champion went to Laurel Valley Farm, Ligonier, for RRF Black Jack 906B, an early junior yearling bull. Reserve went to Sarah A. Messick, Middletown, for MF White Shadow C35, a junior bull calf.

In the final class, Limousin, grand champion heifer went to Sugar Maple and Courtney Church, Dayton, for GPFF Dazzle, a late junior yearling heifer. Reserve was awarded to a late summer yearling heifer, GPFF Black Polled Latonya, exhibited by Lori Limousin, Scottdale.

Grand champion Limousin bull went to an early summer yearling bull exhibited by Sugar Maple and Courtney Church, Dayton. Reserve went to a senior bull calf, JRRC Alexander, exhibited by James Robison, Oley.

Following is a list of show placings.

Agriculture Day To Focus On New Uses

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn, wheat, soybeans, and other crops are more than just food. They are staples for consumer products such as biodegradable plastic, cosmetics, and ink. The accomplishments of these alternative uses for agricultural products will take center stage during National Agriculture Day 1994, according to an announcement made at the New Uses Council's annual conference.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), the Alternative Agriculture Research and Commercialization Center (AARC), and the New Uses Council (NUC) joined the organizer of National Agriculture Day, the Agriculture Council of America, in the announcement.

"The economic and environmental benefits of new uses are astounding and provide promise for developing rural communities. Now crops can be produced and processed all in the same community and that means jobs," said Bob J. Nash, USDA undersecretary for rural development. "National Agriculture Day offers a unique opportunity to let the millions of Americans who are fed and clothed by American producers know that we are truly 'growing better everyday,' and that new uses are an important part of that growth."

National Agriculture Day, scheduled for March 20, is the annual celebration of agriculture coordinated by the Agriculture Council of America. "National Ag Day helps bridge the gap between consumers and producers through two-way communication. By listening and responding to consumers' needs, agriculture will continue to improve. New uses are a direct response to consumers' environmental concerns, and National Agriculture Day provides an opportunity to tell this important story," said Wm. Patrick Nichols, president of the Agriculture Council of America.

Jeff Gain, chairman of the NUC, said, "abundant traditional crops, and a variety of non-traditional crops, can be used to their full potential, replacing non-renewable resources with renewable environment-friendly ones. Corn, for example, is already being used to make fuel and biodegradable plastics. We're excited that National Agriculture Day will focus on these important achievements and help educate consumers about agriculture's ever-changing role in society."

Master Farmers Named At Luncheon

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Master Farmer Program, now in its 60th year, recognizes farmers from Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and West Virginia for high achievement in farming and community service. The program is sponsored by Pennsylvania Farmer magazine and Cooperative Extension in the Mid-Atlantic states.

Janet Knouse is one of five Pennsylvania farmers recognized as 1994 Master Farmers at an awards luncheon held this week in conjunction with the 78th Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

Knouse is president and general manager of Knouse Fruitlands, Inc., an 1800-acre family farm corporation consisting of nine farms with the main office located in Arendtsville. Their crops are apples, peaches and nectarines.

Knouse has two sons and a daughter who are employed with the corporation. Milton is vice president and production manager of Franklin County Orchards. Brian is vice president and production manager of Adams and Cumberland County Orchards. Tonya is corporate secretary, assistant treasurer and data processing manager.

The Knouse family uses integrated pest management to help decrease the use of chemicals on their fruit trees. They regularly have soil analyses done and are converting orchards from standard size rootstocks to semi-dwarf and dwarf trees to increase production and make harvesting easier.

Janet Knouse is director of the growers' cooperative called Knouse Foods. She serves as the advisory board of Farmers Bank and Trust and is director of the Grower's Equipment Center, which is owned by 12 local farmers. She has served on the Board of York Farm Credit for five years and has been director of Rice Fruit Company for 16 years.

David and Phoebe Bitler

David and Phoebe Bitler were also recognized.

The Bitlers own and operate Vista Grande, a 90-cow dairy farm located in Fleetwood. They strive for maximum milk production by continually improving their herd management and genetics. Their annual herd average is 21,537 pounds of milk. In addition, they raise steers for dairy beef.

They grow much of their own forage and grain and employ a crop consultant to help with soil testing, integrated pest management and nutrient management. Working with the state Soil Conservation Service, they have constructed an animal waste facility, have established new filter strips in some fields and have improved existing sod waterways.

The Bitlers have worked to develop positive public relations in their county. As the Berks County Dairy Promotions Coordinator, Phoebe Bitler has coordinated the Berks County Dairy Festival and Berks County Dairy Nite. The Bitlers also have provided their beef customers with a newsletter containing recipes and nutritional information.

The Bitlers are members of the national and state Holstein Associations, the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association and the Berks Holstein Club. David was named Regional Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 and the Kutztown Jaycees Outstanding Young Farmer.

Art and Duane Hershey

Also named in the 1994 Master Farmer Program were Art and Duane Hershey.

The Hersheys own and operate Ar-Joy Farms, a 70-cow dairy farm located in Cochranville. By studying the Holstein breed and using top-quality bulls, they have been able to develop a herd of 80 percent home-bred cattle that produce more than 25,000 pounds of milk on a rolling herd average.

The Hersheys recently installed a new ventilation system that replaces air every 45 seconds, creating a 2.5 mile-per-hour air flow through the barn. They also use a computer to help them keep more accurate records and prepare and budget for the coming year.

In 1986, with help from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, the Hersheys built a liquid manure system with a six-month capacity. Now they haul manure only twice a year and plow it under within 24 hours, allowing a great reduction in fertilizer costs.

They also have a full nutrient management plan, which includes the installation of a sod waterway as well as a pit at the bottom of the barnyard to catch rainwater and barnyard manure and keep it from running into a crossing stream that ultimately empties into the Chesapeake Bay.

In 1982, Art Hershey was elected to the Pennsylvania General Assembly as State Representative for the 13th district. For his first two years as a representative, he came home each night to assist on the farm and did the milking on weekends when the assembly was not in session.

In 1967, Ar-Joy Farms was selected to be a Penn State Demonstration Farm. In 1987, Ar-Joy Farms received the Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Conservation Award, and in 1989 the farm was named a Dairy of Distinction.

Robert Ott

Robert Ott is another Master Farmer.

Ott owns and manages Ott's Farm and Greenhouses, a 50,000-square-foot production greenhouse complex in New Alexandria. His wife, Sally, handles the payroll and bookkeeping. Employing a full-time grower, an assistant grower and seasonal workers, the operation produces nearly one million plants each year for sale as finished plants or to be sold to other growers for finishing.

Crops grown by the Otts include poinsettias, hanging baskets, bedding plants, tulips, hyacinths, lilies and mums. They also have grown field vegetables and vegetable transplants. Sixty percent of their finished product is marketed and pre-sold to organizations that sell flowers as fundraisers, such as churches, high school groups and 4-H clubs.

The Otts have adopted innovative practices to improve productivity and profitability. With the help of two daughters with graduate degrees in information systems, they have developed computerized systems to control crop production timetables, inventories, payroll and accounting.

Their technological improvements have enhanced efficiency and reduced labor cost per unit. They use an automatic seeder, under-pot heating, flat-filling and pot-filling machines, conveyors, rolling benches to maximize growing area, automatic misting and watering systems and high-pressure sodium lights to aid in propagation.

Ott has been active in several farm, civic, fraternal and service organizations, including the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the Poinsettia Growers Association, Friends of 4-H, Loyal Order of Moose, Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation and Lions International. He served on the board of directors of both the Western Pennsylvania Flower Growers Association and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, and was a member of the Westmoreland County Extension Committee.

Dennis Wolff

Dennis Wolff is another master farmer.

Wolff and his wife, Lois, own and operate Pen-Col Farms, a 580-cow dairy farm in Millville. The operation also includes a purebred cattle business, which has grown along with the international market for cattle and embryos. The Wolffs devote much time to studying market trends and finding ways to improve market share.

They use embryo transfer to maintain their herd's genetic standing. They also have improved harvesting and feeding systems on the farm by using dump wagons, trenches and a mixer truck. To reward employees for the profitability of their divisions, they also have developed a bonus program.

The Wolffs are completing a new 32-cow tie stall barn for their purebred breeding herd and will turn their original barn into a commercial milking barn for 160 cows in order to better track each division of their business.

Wolff is a member of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, the Columbia-Luzerne Holstein Club and the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Dennis Wolff was appointed to the Pennsylvania Animal Health Commission by Governor Robert Casey.

More than 200 farmers were nominated for the Master Farmer Program this year. Judges of the final round were Sam Garrison, assistant secretary of agriculture for New Jersey; John Crowgey, vice president of special credit at the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore; and Robert Sams, assistant to the dean for communications and external relations in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Weather, Soil Work To Provide Champion Tobacco

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Simply put, growing good tobacco depends on the best soil and weather — and a Strasburg area farmer insists he's got the best of both.

Donald M. Rohrer, who lives near Strasburg, picked up grand champion smoking tobacco last week at the Lancaster County tobacco show.

Rohrer, who grows about five acres of tobacco, said the sandy-loam soil he grows his tobacco on provides a good, light crop. Rohrer indicated that a former tobacco show judge once said some of the best tobacco in Lancaster comes from the soil of Strasburg, which is rich in nutrient-holding mica.

Rohrer repeated as champion from last year, and has won about 10 championships out of the last 15. He said he intends to gradually cut back on growing tobacco as he nears retirement.

Todd M. Rohrer, Strasburg, won grand champion Pa. Type 41 tobacco at the show.

Lancaster County Ag Agent Bob Anderson said that this year has been a good growing year for tobacco. Anderson said he was surprised that there have been fewer disease and insect problems in growing tobacco than the county has seen in the past.

There were a total of 45 exhibitors. Judges for the show were Geoffrey Ranck, Domestic Tobacco, and Jay Frey, Lancaster Leaf.

Following is a list of show placings.

System Makes Stanchion Milking Easy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The new Easy Line System from Alfa Laval Agri makes stanchion dairy operations safer and healthier by eliminating the traditional chore of lugging heavy milker units to each cow several times a day.

Proven effective for years by farmers in Scandinavia, the Easy Line System enables dairymen to suspend milking equipment from a unique overhead rail system which easily transports heavy equipment throughout their tie-stall barn.

The Easy Line System makes a dairyman's operation more efficient and safe by:

- Eliminating all heavy lifting during milking.
- Making milking easier for women and children.
- Reducing health risks such as neck, back, and shoulder strain and injury.
- Safely organizing and storing milking units.

The Easy Line System can also be used for other chores such as moving calves and distributing bedding.

"It's all about comfort and efficiency on the job," said Mark Hart, marketing manager for Alfa Laval Agri. "With the new Easy Line System, running a tie-stall barn is physically much easier for a person. It saves a lot of time and energy."

Proven effective for years by farmers in Scandinavia, the Easy Line System enables dairymen to suspend milking equipment from a unique overhead rail system which easily transports heavy equipment throughout their tie-stall barn.

The Easy Line System comes complete with rail, points, support brackets, and carriers. All carriers are constructed of stainless steel for durability and rail parts are hot galvanized for long life. The Easy Line system is available immediately through Alfa Laval Agri's network of more than 300 independent Alfa Laval dealers.

Keystone Farm Credit Hires Representative

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Marvin E. Zimmerman was recently hired by Keystone Farm Credit, ACA (Agricultural Credit Association) as a field representative in the Tatamy area.

The announcement was made by Edward Buss, branch manager of the Lehigh Valley offices, which include facilities in Fogelsville and Tatamy.

Raised on his family's dairy farm in Benton (Columbia County) Zimmerman was graduated from Benton Area High School in 1983. While in high school, he was active in the FFA and Columbia County 4-H Dairy program.

Zimmerman was graduated magna cum laude in 1992 from Delaware Valley College (DVC) with a degree in dairy science.

During college, he was vice president of the DVC Dairy Society and a member of the DVC Block & Bridle Club. After graduation, he served as a graduate research assistant at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg, Va.

While a student at Delaware Valley College, Zimmerman worked as an assistant manager for Promise Land Dairy in Perkasie, Pa. His duties included feeding and milking a 70-cow diary herd, assisting with record keeping, and maintaining farm equipment.

Case Offers 9-Foot Disc Mower/Conditioner

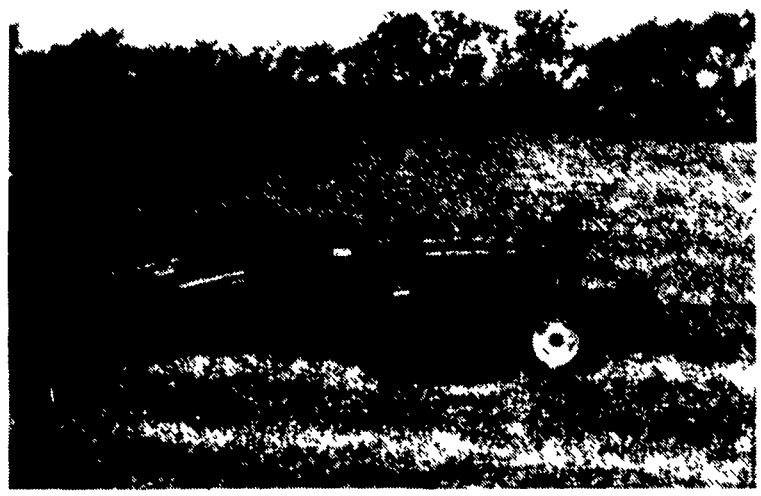
RACINE, Wis. — Case recently added the Case International 8309 disc mower conditioners to its line of hay and forage equipment. The 8309, which cuts to a width of 9 feet 2 inches, incorporates the latest refinements in cutterbed technology.

The rugged disc-type cutterbar on the 8309 enables operators to cut a wider variety of crops than conventional sickle-bar mower conditioners. "They can cut faster," said Dave Hess, Case product manager-hay and forage. "And they can cut in the toughest field conditions." The result is increased productivity.

"The 8309 uses the latest design technology to ensure reliability," said Hess. He explained that advancements in the modular spur gear cutterbed on the 8309 include wider gear teeth and larger idler gear bearings than used on competitive units, for dependability and load-carrying capability, and a higher-grade finish on the gear teeth to minimize cutterbed contamination and reduce noise.

Six heat-treated oval discs, each with two reversible knives, operate at 2600 rpm for a knife-tip speed of 184 mph. Replaceable skid shoes and rock guards are standard. Outside discs include an anti-wrap cage and crop slinger disc to improve crop flow and reduce recutting.

The header of the 8309 is suspended from the main frame. Adjustable vertical and radial flotation permits the header to float freely for uniform cutting with minimal scalping. The 8309 can cut closer to the ground and, therefore, more cleanly than machines with shaft-type cutterbars. In situations where field conditions require an even more aggressive cut, header tilt is manually adjustable.



The Case International Model 8309 disc mower conditioner, which cuts to a width of 9 feet 2 inches, incorporates the latest refinements in disc cutterbed technology for optimum reliability.

Herbicide Gel Formulation Proves Popular

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — A novel herbicide formulation targeted to smaller-volume users is proving popular, according to research conducted by the manufacturer.

Buctril Gel, a new formulation of Buctril® brand bromoxynil herbicide in water-soluble Gel-Tec paks, was available in very limited quantities for the 1993 growing season.

Research conducted by the manufacturer, Rhone-Poulenc Ag Company, found that most farmers who were able to try the gel were pleased with the way the product was packaged and how it performed. Of farmers responding to a questionnaire included with the product, a large majority said that the product was better or much better than liquid formulations in 2.5-gallon jugs.

Each case of Buctril Gel replaces two 2.5-gallon plastic jugs. Instead of being forced to triple-rinse and dispose of the jugs in a certified landfill, return to a retailer or recycle, Buctril Gel users can simply dispose of the remaining plastic overpacks and cardboard box as they would normal household waste.

The gel paks will not freeze, and are tough enough to survive dropping on concrete from three feet or more, yet they dissolve quickly in the spray tank — even in cold water.

Hoffman Expands Soybean Line

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Hoffman Seeds, Inc. has announced that it will be expanding its line of proprietary soybeans for 1994.

The eight varieties range in maturity from Early Group 0 to Mid-Late Group IV and include AC Bravor, 7193, 7253, 7314, 7353, 7384, 7403 and 7484. Each variety has been selected exclusively for Northeast growing conditions.

"Recent improvements in our testing and production facilities," said Fred Lepley, vice president of sales and marketing, "have paved the way for this move to a stronger proprietary lineup.

"We're particularly proud of the fact that Hoffman Seeds is one of just a few seed companies producing soybeans exclusively for the East. We're also one of only a few companies to conduct broad scale trials to verify performance."

Hoffman's product performance has been boosted by working with multiple breeder locations.

PennWest Farm Credit Reorganizes To Provide On-Farm Service

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — William J. Hoffman, president of PennWest Farm Credit, ACA, recently announced a reorganizational plan to provide quality and efficient on-farm service to the more than 6,000 customers served by the cooperative.

The keystone of the reorganization is to provide customers with service at their place of business, on their farms. The association territory, which includes 25 western Pennsylvania counties and four counties in the West Virginia panhandle, has been divided into four service regions.

Vice presidents of regional operations have been appointed with the responsibility of managing the customer service team in their area.

John Mark Hunter leads the team from the Meadville office serving customers in the northern region, including Crawford, Erie, Forest, Mercer, Venango, and Warren counties.

Hunter began his career with Farm Credit as a field representative in 1982 in the Washington branch. He earned his bachelor's degree from West Liberty State College, West Liberty, W. Va.

Leading the service team in the central region from the Butler office is Terry Stockdale. This region serves farmers in northern Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Clarion, Indiana, Jefferson and Lawrence counties.

Stockdale began his Farm Credit career as a loan officer in the Mercer branch office following 15 years of farm management experience. He received his bachelor's degree at Penn State University.

James McMurray serves as manager of the southern region. This region serves southern Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Somerset, Washington, and Westmoreland counties in Pennsylvania and Brooke, Hancock, Marshall, and Ohio counties in West Virginia.

McMurray began his Farm Credit career in 1984 following three years as a vocational agriculture teacher and eight years as a dairy farmer. He earned his bachelor's degree from Penn State University.

Jay Chamberlin serves as manager of the eastern region following nine years as branch manager of the Mercer Branch of PennWest Farm credit. This region serves Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Centre, Clearfield, and Huntingdon counties.

Chamberlain received his bachelor's degree from Delaware Valley College, Doylestown.

Winebark, Becker Grab Trophies At Junior Swine Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Sometimes, daughter knows best.

For both supreme champion and reserve champion exhibitors at Tuesday's junior swine show at the Farm Show, the daughters that won went against their fathers' judgment regarding selection of the right animal. Janine Winebark, supreme champion, decided on the hog that would be champion, sticking with one that her dad, Ken Winebark, thought, a while ago, wasn't up to par.

And Melissa Becker, supreme reserve, admitted that she and her dad, Marlin Becker, Manheim, finally "came to an agreement" and took a hog "that all the qualities to become champion," said Melissa.

In any case, both competed against 313 other exhibitors to get to the top of their class and the top of the show, both with crossbred swine.

Janine, 9, a fourth grader at Myerstown Elementary, is the daughter of Ken and Janet Winebark. The Winebarks have been showing at several county and state events. She showed her 257-pound heavyweight Hampshire/Duroc cross.

Reserve champion, Melissa Becker, 15, the daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, is a sophomore at Manheim Township. She showed her 268-pound Hampshire/Duroc cross.

Judge Tom Farrer, from Royal Center, Ind., said that his decision represents "one man's opinion one day." The champion was the "most tremendously complete individual and a testament to the champion drive." The supreme hog came from a division that was clearly one of "domination and power," said Farrer.

The reserve showed extremely good structure and muscling important to the industry.

Figures Show Importance Of Poultry Industry

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Newly released information compiled by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the nonprofit trade association working for the continued progress of the Delmarva Peninsula's poultry industry, shows the chicken industry continues to grow, providing considerable employment and increased economic contributions to the area.

Broiler production last year totaled 573,400,000 birds, up 4.5 percent from 1992, while the number of pounds produced rose 5.3 percent to reach 2,781,000,000 pounds. Each bird weighed an average of 4.85 pounds, which is heavier than the national average.

Unlike many industries on the Delmarva Peninsula, the poultry industry remained strong in 1993. Close to 21,000 persons were directly employed in the industry, while thousands of others had jobs because of the poultry industry's presence. These 21,000 people earned more than $368 million, a tremendous amount of money in a small area such as Delmarva.

The poultry industry creates a built-in market for grain and soybean farmers on Delmarva. Most of the corn, soybeans, and sorghum raised by local farmers is used by the poultry industry. In fact, it is necessary to bring in grain from other areas to meet the poultry industry's growing needs. The DPI 1993 figures show that 22.5 million bushels of soybeans, 65.3 million bushels of corn, and 1.59 million bushels of sorghum, with a farm value of $290 million were used for poultry feed.

Processed and ready for market, the 573.4 million broiler chickens were valued at $1.264 billion.

"These figures clearly demonstrate the tremendous impact of the poultry industry on the economy of Delmarva," said DPI President Walter W. Moorhead. "Our industry continues to expand, which benefits everyone on Delmarva.

Pork Producers Invest In Industry's Future

DES MOINES, Iowa — The nation's pork producers are investing more than $38 million this year in programs to strengthen the position of pork in the marketplace and to expand and develop markets for pork products in this country and foreign markets.

Money for pork promotion, research, and consumer information programs comes from a national legislative checkoff program that started in 1986. Producers selling breeding stock, feeder pigs or market hogs, as well as importers of hogs and pork products, contribute .35 of one percent of the market value (35 cents per $100 value) to the checkoff program.

The National Pork Board contracts with two organizations, the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) and the Pork Industry Group of the National Live Stock and Meat Bord, to carry out specific programs.

NPPC coordinates national product promotion and marketing efforts in addition to production research and producer education projects. The checkoff program has enabled the pork industry to establish pork as a versatile, nutritious protein alternative to consumers, thanks to the highly successful Pork-The Other White Meat® national advertising campaign which includes network television, radio, and magazine ads.

Consumer information programs alert food editors across the country to the nutritional value and versatility of today's leaner pork. Checkoff funds are being invested in research and education programs that will have a positive impact on the future direction of the pork industry in such areas as genetics, meat science, animal care, nutrition and the environment.

The U.S. Meat Export Federation assists NPPC in maintaining and developing foreign markets for U.S. pork. Checkoff-funded pork promotions in foreign countries emphasize the U.S. as a reliable source of high quality pork products.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board's Pork Industry Group (PIG) coordinates informational programs aimed at health care professionals and schools. It also conducts nutrition and product research.

Checkoff-funded programs are conducted at the local and state level as well as nationally. State pork producer associations will collectively receive more than $8 million this year to spend on promotion, consumer information, and research projects in their respective states.

Local Firm Among 50 Largest Ag Consultants

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Out of 187 respondents from across the United States, Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Inc. (BACS) has been ranked among the 50 largest consulting firms in the country by the publication Agri Finance in its October 1993 issue.

When viewed according to the number of clients served, BACS ranks fifth nationally. In addition, the firm is the largest agricultural consulting firm in the northeastern United States.

Results of the Agri Finance survey indicated that the field of agricultural consulting continues strong growth in numbers, in acres served, and in influence. According to Agri Finance, the firms surveyed provide consulting services for an average of approximately 150 clients. BACS provides services for approximately 800 clients in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, and Puerto Rico.

Researchers Look For A Few Good Bugs

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Growers of poinsettias and other greenhouse crops face difficult adversaries in their efforts to bring healthy plants to market each year.

A variety of insect pests can reduce crop yields and quality, cause economic loss, and lead to greater reliance on chemical pesticides. But with the help of Penn State researchers, growers are finding new allies in their battle against bugs.

Penn State scientists have used beneficial insects successfully to help manage pests in poinsettias and greenhouse tomatoes. Pest control strategies arising from the research could greatly reduce, or even eliminate, the use of insecticides in many greenhouses.

"Insect pests can devastate a greenhouse crop," said Cathy Thomas, an entomology research technologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "But growers no longer can rely on conventional pesticides because of concerns with worker safety, insect resistance, food safety, new government regulations and a lack of registered chemicals for greenhouse use."

Greenhouse production is a highly valuable industry in Pennsylvania. Annual wholesale receipts in the specialized greenhouse vegetable and floriculture sector are more than $130 million.

More than a dozen commercial greenhouse operators have cooperated with the Penn State researchers to study biological control as part of an integrated pest management (IPM) strategy. The program, which began in 1989, is supported by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association.

"Good things seem to happen when you reduce pesticides in the greenhouse," said Alan Michael, the Penn State Cooperative Extension horticulture agent who initiated the project. "Natural predators come in, insect populations stay low, crop quality improves, employees are happier, you tend to meet more of the regulations imposed on growers, and you get a little better harvest."

In the project's first phase, scientists used a tiny, stingless wasp, Encarsia formosa, to control greenhouse whitefly. The wasp attacks whiteflies by laying eggs inside the pests' larvae. When the eggs hatch, the emerging wasps feed on the larvae, which soon die.

The parasite is so effective that many participating growers have practically eliminated pesticide spraying to control whiteflies. "In some cases, we've found that Encarsia can virtually wipe out whiteflies in poinsettias," said Thomas. "We've gone into the sales season with hardly any whiteflies left. That's never happened in tomatoes, but the wasps significantly reduce the pest."

In most cases, success depends on when the beneficial insects are introduced in the greenhouse. "You have to introduce beneficials rather early, while you still have low levels of infestation," said Dr. Michael Orzolek, professor of vegetable crops. "But you never want to completely eliminate the pest. If you always have a low pest population, the beneficials can feed and reproduce. Our research shows that small numbers of pests aren't a problem for crop quality and quantity."

The use of biocontrol offers several advantages over traditional chemical pesticides, not the least of which is worker safety. "Greenhouse workers often are women of child-bearing age, and they have a right to be concerned," said Michael. "In most cases, greenhouse employees involved in this program were delighted they no longer had to enter a confined space to handle plant material containing pesticide residues."

Eliminating pesticides also allows native beneficial insects to migrate into a greenhouse. "In one instance, we had an invasion of green peach aphid," said Dr. Paul Heller, professor of entomology. "Since no pesticides had been used in the biocontrol house, native parasites migrated in and took care of the problem. In the grower's other houses, where pesticides had been used, he had to spray to get rid of the aphids."

The absence of chemicals also reduces the risk of pesticide poisoning of plants, and protects plants from physical damage caused by tanks, hoses and sprayers being pulled through the greenhouse. In addition, biocontrol permits the use of bumblebees for natural pollination, which often increases fruit quality and yield.

Researchers now are studying biocontrol for other greenhouse pests, such as aphids and western flower thrips. The latter pest is especially serious because it is the primary carrier of tomato spotted wilt virus, a disease that can infect hundreds of greenhouse plant varieties. In 1989 and 1990, the virus was responsible for nearly $700,000 in lost sales of greenhouse plants in Pennsylvania.

The researchers say several issues must be addressed before biocontrol is more widely adopted. Some growers need more information to be receptive to IPM. More research is needed to develop better beneficial insects for some pests. And more suppliers are needed to improve availability and quality control of beneficials.

In the meantime, a grower who has participated in the Penn State research recommends biocontrol to other greenhouse operators. "They soon won't have any choice," said Boyd Mertz of Northumberland. "Growers who aren't looking at biocontrol have their heads in the sand."

"When we first started this project, growers laughed," said Thomas. "Using bugs to control bugs? They don't laugh anymore. Now they listen."

Guidebook Assists Those Looking For Farming Alternatives

ITHACA, N.Y. — A guidebook is available to assist rural and farm residents who are considering alternative enterprises.

"Farming Alternatives: A Guide to Evaluating the Feasibility of New Farm-Based Enterprises," takes the reader through a step-by-step analysis of a potential new business. The book uses a case study and workbook format to evaluate personal and family considerations, available resources, alternative enterprise options, market potential, production feasibility, profitability, cash flow, and a final evaluation of all factors combined. In addition to providing a format for evaluating an alternative enterprise, the guidebook provides sources of information for specific materials.

Starting a new venture requires resources, careful management, hard work, and risk. Before committing time and resources to an enterprise, it is important to look at the feasibility of the idea on paper. Each chapter of Farming Alternatives includes exercises — self-tests, checklists, and work sheets — that allow the reader to analyze an enterprise idea and build business management skills. The reader will take an inventory to identify underutilized resources that can be used in a new enterprise, perform market research to determine who will buy a product or service, and plan the production aspects of the enterprise. An income statement and cash flow analysis will be prepared to determine profitability and the financial feasibility of starting and operating the enterprise. The guidebook even explains how to combine the documents to present your proposal to a lender.

Many extension agents and other educators have expressed an interest in organizing workshops for farm and rural famililes interested in, but not necessarily experienced in, alternative enterprises. Farming Alternatives works well as a textbook for an in-depth workshop series, as a framework for one-on-one counseling, and as a resource for the reader to use on his or her own.

In addition to the guidebook, a 14-minute video. "Farming Alternatives: Innovation on Northeast Farms," NRAES—28, which provides an introduction and overview of the major issues involved in developing new farm-based enterprises, is also available from NRAES. Together, the guidebook and video are being successfully used as teaching tools by cooperative extension agents.

"Farming Alternatives" was written by Nancy Grudens Schuck, Cooperative Extension, Cornell University; Wayne Knoblauch, Agricultural Economics, Cornell University; Judy Green, Farming Alternatives Program, Cornell University; and Mary Saylor, Extension Education, The Pennsylvania State University.

The cost is $8 for the guidebook, "Farming Alternatives; A Guide to Evaluating the Feasibility of New Farm-Based Enterprises," NRAES—32, and $20 for the video, Farming Alternatives: Innovation on Northeast Farms, NRAES—28. Both are available from the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES), Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853-5701.

Prices include postage and handling for U.S. orders only; foreign orders must be prepaid in U.S. funds. Quantity discounts on the guidebook are as follows: 10—49 copies, $6.40 per copy; 50—99 copies, $5.60 per copy; and 100 or more copies, $4.80 per copy.

No quantity discounts are available on the video. Please make your check payable to NRAES, or call (607) 255-7654 for more information. Call or write for a free publication catalog.

Zeneca Ag Products Makes Agreement

WILMINGTON, Del. — Zeneca Ag Products announced it has reached an agreement with Micro-Flo Company of Lakeland, Fla., whereby Micro-Flo will assume U.S. marketing responsibilities for Zeneca captan fungicide in the agricultural markets.

Zeneca Ag Products manufactures captan, a broad-spectrum fungicide to control destructive diseases of many fruit and nut crops and to protect newly planted seed from decay caused by soil inhabiting fungi. The agreement, which takes effect on January 1, does not include the professional and homeowner uses of captan, which will continue to be serviced by Zeneca Professional Products, nor does it include captan uses for seed treatment products in the U.S.

According to Buddy Camors, business director for Zeneca's Horticulture Business Team, "This agreement is an excellent opportunity for both parties. With the expected registration of Surpass herbicide for corn in 1994, and expanded labelling of Karate insecticide into a number of additional crops, this agreement allows us to refocus Zeneca's marketing efforts on these new opportunities without reducing the support for, and availability of captan fungicide to U.S. growers."

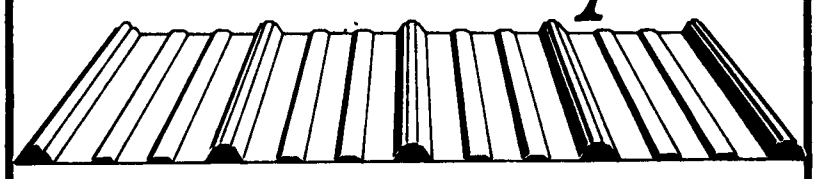
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

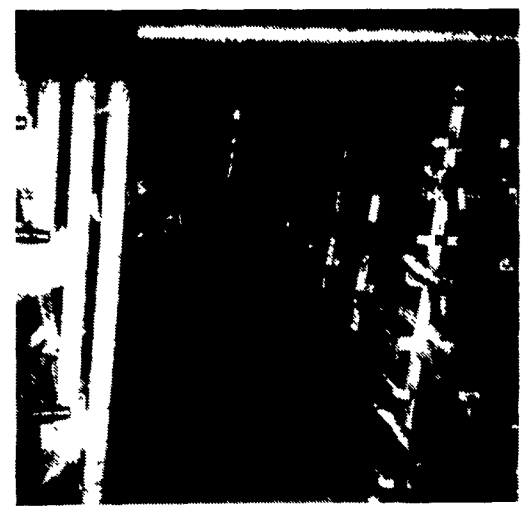
On their newly remodeled pullet house with CHORE-TIME® Cages and Ultraflo feeding

During December 1993 Sperry Farms replaced their last non-Choretime cages with a Choretime 2 Plus 2 pullet cage system with Ultraflo feeding.

CHORE-TIME GIVES you more total usable floor space by locating the feeder on the outside of the cage. Also lowers mortality by preventing young birds from getting hung up in the feeder during its operation.*

WE KEEP ADJUSTMENTS to a minimum with only one moving piece in our cage front. Pear-shape openings provide easy access to feed, while eliminating most wastage.*



Choretime 2 plus 2 pullet cage system. 4 rows, 4 high, 340 feet long, 78,000 bird capacity. Ziggitty adjustable nipple drinkers with solid rod connectors.

Cow Color Preference Is More Than Personal

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — In recent years, black-and-white Holstein-Friesians, or their red-and-white genetic alternatives have become the preferred dairy breed in this country and increasingly in the world.

Among the primary reasons are dairy production economics and consumer preference for the low-fat milk these cows produce.

Before 1970, composition of the dairy cow herd in the United States was quite different.

Guernsey, Jerseys, Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, and even Milking Shorthorn made up the dairy cow populations commonly known as colored breeds, but having a red Holstein calf was tantamount to treason.

Such a calf was hidden, as though it somehow had something to do with our then "Red" political enemy.

This particular concern over cow color has, of course, disappeared.

There are, however, some biological differences between cow colors and the cow's ability to cope with environmental stress from heat, humidity and solar radiation. Cow color isn't just personal taste or aesthetics as, for example, in the case of a Holstein whose individual coat color is more black or more white. Earlier research pointed out that there were physiological differences in adaptation and productivity, depending on the amount of black or white in the hair coat.

A recent study from Florida has added new evidence (Journal of Dairy Sciences, August 1993: 2286-2291) that the percentage of black or white coat color in Holsteins influences milk production. DHIA production and reproduction records and registration certificate drawings from 110 Florida herds (a total of 4,293 cows) were analyzed for a seven-year period. The results are important because every year Florida suffers months of adverse subtropical weather that affects dairy cows and their production efficiency.

What they found in another Florida study has already helped dairy farmers here in the mid-Atlantic region, where muggy 90-plus-degree days are no longer unusual. We've learned from Florida dairy farmers how to keep cows cool by hanging irrigation sprinklers upside down in the holding and under-roof areas so that the water "rains" down. This, combined with fans to force air, cools the animals so they are less affected by the heat.

Climatic stress — especially from excessive heat and solar radiation — decreases milk production, changes milk composition and lowers reproductive performance. Solar radiation is a significant factor since it increases body temperature directly.

A few years ago here in the University of Delaware's dairy herd, we tried temperature sensors on the teat cups of our milking machines to find differences in the temperature of milk as it leaves the udder. We theorized that this would give us early indication of mastitis. What we found was something else entirely. On 90-degree days, the warning lights on the cows' temperature sensors began to blink. The cows didn't have mastitis; they just had higher body temperatures. This finding was contrary to most textbooks that stated a cow's body temperature doesn't vary in relation to the environment as a reptile's or amphibian's does. Thus we learned we must take seriously the effects of hot days on the physiology and productivity of our cows, and on our incomes from milk production.

This is why the Florida study examining the relationship of coat color to climatic stress is so interesting, especially given the large number of cows and data set involved. The heat load on the cow's body comes from absorption of light and heat by the cow's body surface. Coat color is directly related to different heat absorption from solar radiation. A solid black Holstein cow absorbs about 92 percent of solar radiation through her hair coat, while a solid white cow absorbs only half as much.

The Florida research found greater milk production of 4.5 pounds for each 1 percent more of white coat color in Holstein cows. More white coat color also resulted in better reproductive efficiency under heat stress. This confirmed older Australian and Arizona studies (though with fewer cows) that white cows produce more milk than black cows, are of lower age at first parturition, have fewer days open and experience shorter calving intervals.

Economic studies of these findings are still needed. But this research does give us ammunition for new ideas in our next dairy cattle breeding plans, which should lead, of course, to greater profits.

NAAB Recognizes Improvement Efforts

COLUMBIA, Mo. — A number of awards were presented during the recent 47th National Association of Animal Breeders (NAAB) convention held at the Chula Vista Resort, in Wisconsin Dells, Wis.

The 1993 NAAB Research Award, which included a check for $1,000, was presented to Dr. H. Duane Norman, supervisory research geneticist at USDA-Animal Improvement Programs Laboratory, Beltsville, Md.

At the same time, the NAAB also made recognition of the efforts of others involved in the dairy cattle breeding industry.

Dr. Norman's major contribution to the industry was the formulation and implementation of the Modified Contemporary Comparison (MCC) procedures used by USDA for sire evaluation from 1974 to 1989.

This was a simple yet accurate ranking of sires applied to the large database of US dairy records, and allowed the US to emerge as a world super-power in dairy genetics.

Many features of the MCC pioneered by Dr. Norman, are still used in today's animal model procedures. These include use of all location records, including a sire-by-herd interaction effect and calculating dollar value indexes. While the advantages are clear, these features have only recently been incorporated in a few leading dairy countries.

Dr. Norman's research played a key role in the adoption of a uniform linear type trait system for calculating genetic evaluations for these traits, and laying the groundwork to determine their value in predicting lifetime profitability. He also represented the United States on FAO's technical advisory committee for "Testing of Different Strains of Friesian Cattle in Poland."

Recently, Dr. Norman coordinated acquisition of an in-house computer which has allowed AIPL to continue their level of research without the need for greatly increased funding.

Others received recognition as well.

Distinguished Service

George Miller, dairy sire analyst and recently retired director of marketing and development at Select Sires Inc., Plain City, Ohio, was this year's recipient of the NAAB Distinguished Service Award.

Miller's career in the artificial insemination industry began in 1956 with Virginia Artificial Breeders Association, now Virginia/North Carolina/Select Sires.

As a result of his originality and resourcefulness, the organization was among the first to adopt a direct-herd, do-it-yourself breeding program, and young sire proving and sampling program.

The most far-reaching and lasting impact of Miller's contribution to the AI industry is the direct result of his "roots" at Round Oak Farm.

His experienced eye and expert advice caused a bull calf named "Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation" to be produced which later found its way to Select Sires.

In 1973, Miller was promoted to director of marketing and development where he continued his successful pattern of recruiting, hiring, and developing the talents of high caliber people.

Under his leadership, the volume of semen marketed by his organization increased threefold.

He served with distinction for eight years on the NAAB International Marketing Committee. He was instrumental in arranging a distributorship agreement with World-Wide Sires for international marketing, and helped open up the Latin American market. His sharp vision brought the international marketing effort from virtually non-existent, to a dramatic world-wide use of the product.

Although retired as director of marketing and development, Miller continues to serve the industry as Select Sires' dairy sire analyst for Virginia and West Virginia. He also serves as a consultant to enhance the marketing program in Canada.

Member Director

The 1993 NAAB Member Director Award recipient was David C. Slusser, immediate past president of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Lancaster.

Slusser attended Penn State University and graduated in 1965 with a bachelor of science degree in dairy science. While at Penn State he was employed by their dairy research farm, and was also football manager for the Penn State Nittany Lions.

In 1970, Slusser purchased Orange Bucket Farm, a 270-acre farm in Crawford County with 100 head of registered Holsteins. The rolling herd average is currently about 21,000 pounds of milk.

He is a member of the Federated Genetics Council, a former member of the National Council of Dairy Cattle Breeding, and was chairman of the 1983 State Holstein Convention.

Slusser has taught computer seminars for regional farmers, a financial workshop for bankers, and has held programs about careers in agriculture for high school students.

The Slusser farm family frequently has also extended itself by opening its home to foreign exchange students, as well as foreign visitors interested in the dairy industry.

He served on Atlantic Breeders Cooperative Board of Directors from 1973 to 1992 and on the NAAB Board of Directors from 1984-1990.

Pioneer Awards

Dr. W.H. Dreher, retired production manager for 21st Century Genetics, Shawano, Wisconsin, was this year's recipient of the NAAB Pioneer Award.

Dr. Dreher was a true pioneer in applying research to the production and distribution of semen, according to NAAB. He was instrumental in developing methods for semen collection, extension, and preservation to obtain optimum fertility and disease free semen.

He worked for early adoption of university research on buffers and extenders, while conducting his own extensive in-house research. He studied repeat breeding cows and early embryonic death, and researched leukosis transmission in bulls.

Dreher trained the first non-veterinarian AI technicians. At a later point, he was instrumental in developing a swine AI trial that was able to achieve good litter size and conception rates. In the 1960's, he helped a Mexican firm advance their semen collection and processing program.

When frozen semen became a reality, Dreher found a more efficient tool with which to freeze extended semen — the pipette. Tagged as the "Magic Wand", it was used until the conversion to straws in the 1970's.

Quality control was of paramount importance to Dr. Dreher. He worked with other staff members to develop a nonreturn rate reporting system to estimate conception rates. He also supported further research to determine the accuracy of nonreturn rates to actual pregnancies.

As world markets for US germ plasm opened, Dreher was instrumental in bringing early health testing work into compliance with foreign regulations. He traveled world-wide marketing the concept of health and genetic quality of US semen.

Hank Dreher was among the founders of NAAB Technical, Sire Health and Research Committees that supported research and shared in the findings.

Also a pioneer awared recipient was Dr. Harry A. Herman, retired NAAB executive secretary emeritus.

After earning his B.S. in agriculture and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees he served nearly 25 years as a teacher, researcher and lecturer in dairy cattle breeding, artificial insemination and herd management.

In July 1953, when the National Association of Animal Breeders was in its infancy, Dr. Herman was appointed as the first executive secretary, and the national NAAB office was established in Columbia, Mo.

During his tenure, the AI program expanded from 40 to 97 mostly cooperative members with one or more AI organizations in nearly every state which accounted for virtually 100 percent of US AI businesses.

Having very capably overseen NAAB and the AI industry through those very formative and successful years, he retired in September of 1972. He had passed the established retirement age by over two years, and was given the title of NAAB executive secretary emeritus.

In addition to dairy activities at the state and national level, Dr. Herman has made many contributions to animal research, authoring more than fifty bulletins and over 150 scientific papers.

He is author or co-author of three textbooks. He served for many years as chairman of the research committee of the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association.

He assisted in developing short courses for training technicians beginning in 1941. He also organized and taught one of the first college-level courses on AI in the United States.

He wrote the artificial breeding column for Hoard's Dairyman for more than 25 years and is a contributor to other farm papers.

Other awards made during the convention include:

- 150,000 Cow Award: William Sylla, Tri-State Breeders Cooperative, Baraboo, Wis.
- 100,000 Cow Award: Adelbert Bravener, William Platten and Leon Jilk, American Breeders Service, DeForest, Wisconsin; Raymond Greene and Ford H. Smith, Eastern AI Cooperative, Ithaca, New York; Joe Schumer, Minnesota/Select Sires, St. Cloud, Minn.
- 500,000 Unit Sales Award: Jim Armstrong, MABC/Select Sires, Lansing, Mich.

ASC Committee Elected At Convention

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Richard Troutman, a Berks County farmer, was elected chairperson on the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee at the county ASCS convention, held December 21 at the agricultural center.

LeRoy Howard, farmer, was elected vice-chairperson and Ralph Sanner was elected a regular member. These persons will serve for the coming year.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The end of one year and the beginning of a new year is a good time to look back to see what you have accomplished, and to look ahead to determine where you want to be next year and 10 years from now.

It is a good time to ask why are you farming? What are your family's goals? Is the farm working for you and helping you to accomplish your goals, or are you a slave to the farm? As a farm manager, you should be concerned about these important questions that affect the life of you and your family.

The worksheet on the other side can help you calculate your costs, your profits, and your family living needs per cwt. of milk shipped. You get paid a certain amount per cwt. of milk shipped, but do you know how much it costs you to produce that milk, and the margins of profit needed to support your family? As a business manager, you should know these figures.

If your profit margins on line 29 are too small to meet your family living needs on line 31 plus all of your mortgage payments, including the portion on line 30 that is related to land - -

a. How much do you need to cut production costs on line 28 or on lines 34 thru 38 to get the margin of profit you need, and can these cuts be made without hurting your business in the long run?

b. How many cwts. of milk must you ship, at your present margin of profit per cwt. of milk, to meet your family's needs (column 2, line 31 divided by line 29)?

c. How many cwt's of milk must you ship per cow to meet your family's needs (the answer in b. above divided by the average number of cows milked per year)?

d. What changes can you make to improve farm profits? Estimate the impact these changes will have on farm income and expenses.

Intensive Grazing Can Boost Profits

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania dairy farmers can significantly increase profits through intensive rotational grazing, says an extension specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

In intensive rotational grazing, a pasture is fenced into small sections. The dairy herd grazes one section until it no longer gets an adequate amount of high-quality forage, then moves to the next section.

"Intensive rotational grazing increases usable pasture and cuts feed costs," says Dr. Steve Ford, assistant professor of agricultural economics. "Many Pennsylvania farmers already use intensive grazing as a major source of forage. Studies indicate that using pasture can increase returns per cow between $85 and $168 each year.

"The increase results from lowered feed costs, so it depends on commodity prices, production costs, and the technology used on the farm," Ford says. "An average increase of about $125 per cow is a conservative estimate. A 60-cow dairy would see increased profits of about $7,500 under these assumptions."

Milk production per cow sometimes declines when cows are put on pasture, but farmers can come out ahead even if it does. "With savings of $125 per cow, farmers can afford to let milk production fall about 1,000 pounds per cow per year at current milk prices and still be as well off financially," Ford says. "To maximize profits, producers should use supplemental feeding to maintain high production."

Rotational grazing systems require additional time and skills, but farmers can spend less time on other forage crop tasks. "Using pasture cuts the need for stored forage," says Ford. "Also, less labor is needed to feed cows and do barn chores. A recent study in Vermont indicated a 50- to 60-cow herd requires 2.5 hours less labor per day on pasture. That labor can be used to better manage cows, youngstock or the farm's crop program."

The potential for increased profits from intensive grazing has its limits, Ford cautions, and pasture will not be appropriate for all farm situations. "Intensive grazing isn't a cure-all, but it can make some farmers money," he says. "Like any management alternative, farmers should carefully evaluate intensively grazed pasture before trying it."

Ford recently surveyed 1,200 Pennsylvania dairy farmers about aspects of their businesses, including feeding practices. "More than 29 percent say they use pasture as their primary forage source during the pasture season," he says. "About 16 percent use a rotational grazing system.

"Farmers in Pennsylvania's western and northern regions make the most use of pasture," Ford says. "In these areas, more than 40 percent use it as primary forage during pasture season and more than 20 percent use intensive grazing. But in southeastern Pennsylvania, less than 20 percent use pasture as primary forage and roughly 8 percent use intensive grazing."

The survey results suggest that pasture use will rise in the future. "More than 18 percent said they intend to increase pasture use within the next five years."

Renewed interest in pasture stems mainly from economics. "Recent decreases in profit margins have forced dairy farmers to examine alternative production systems," says Ford. "And research has shown that intensively managed pasture can significantly reduce feed costs and other expenses during the grazing season."

Enter these changes in the change column of the worksheet. Add them to your current yr-to-date totals on the left side of the worksheet to get the yr-to-date totals on the right side of the sheet. Then, recalculate your costs and returns per cwt. of milk.

Most of the figures on the left side of the work sheet are 1991 averages for about 1,000 Penna. dairy farms. In a few cases where data was missing, some estimates and assumptions were made.

The figures assume an average herd size of 69 cows plus 55 heifers which calve at 27 months of age. Cow turnover rate is about 36 percent, which means 25 replacements are needed per year.

These figures are offered as an example and as a basis for comparison. Enter figures from your own farm to see how well you are doing.

The categories of costs at the bottom of the worksheet can be quite revealing and surprising. For example, total feed-related costs can be quite different from purchased feed costs, and from your DHIA feed costs, because it includes the cost of feeding dry cows and heifers plus all crop-related costs.

You can calculate these categoried costs by adding the lines indicated in parentheses. Keep in mind costs shown in one category may overlap with those in other categories. These categorizations of costs are meant to help reveal clearly some of the major costs associated with dairying and milk production.

Leaders Join National Water Quality Forum

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmer cooperative leaders joined business, government, and nonprofit leaders in serving on a newly established National Forum on Nonpoint Source Pollution.

Principal sources of nonpoint source pollution include water runoff from farms, city streets, residential lawns, parking lots, and construction sites. The Forum is charged with advancing creative solutions by forging partnerships between government and the private sector to harness market forces, education, and the nation's voluntary spirit to achieve real water quality benefits. The farmer cooperative community is stepping forward with a strong commitment to help realize the Forum's goals.

Glenn Webb is serving as a farmer representative on the Forum.

"The National Geographic Society and The Conservation Fund are to be commended for creating the Forum," Webb said. "As farmers, our families are among the first to be affected by water quality problems. We are committed to playing a positive role in enhancing environmental stewardship, and we welcome this partnership approach." Webb and his wife, Phyllis, own and operate a 430-acre fruit and livestock farm near Tunnel Hill, Ill.

Russell L. Hanlin, president and CEO of Sunkist Growers, Inc., has also been named to serve on the Forum. Sunkist is a cooperative of 6,500 members in California and Arizona with an average farm size of 40 acres. "Cooperatives are uniquely positioned to be part of the solution by working in partnership with our farmer-owners," the cooperative leader said. "We are optimistic that the Forum can yield sound recommendations that cooperatives can carry to farmers for adoption."

CF Industries, Inc., an interregional agricultural fertilizer cooperative, is also represented on the Forum by Robert C. Liuzzi, president and CEO. "We believe the partnership created by the Forum will make real progress on an extremely complex, but very important problem," Liuzzi said. "In addition to efforts made by CF, the company's member-owners and their respective farmer-owners will provide invaluable expertise and outreach as the Forum works to develop innovative answers."

12:00 Lunch Visit Displays & Factory Reps
1:00 Pesticide Safety & Update Training
Luke Bruckhart - Pa. Dept. of Agriculture
1:30 Zone Till Planting - Ray Rawson, Farwell, Michigan

Ray Rawson has devoted 30 years to the perfection of a tillage system that achieves top yields, reduces production costs and conserves soil. Through the identification and management of yield-limiting factors, Rawson has been able to harvest yields twice the county average on his 5,500 acre cropping operation. Ray has designed, tested and proven a number of products and planter attachments which are commercially available as well as establishing the Rawson National Zone-Till Association.

Those attending both these sessions will acquire 1 core and 1 category point toward the required Pa. pesticide certification update.

There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding.

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers. Grass seeding attachment for 16x7.

Binkley & Hurst Has The Newly Introduced Mower Conditioner In Stock!

Gehl Introduces Pull-Type Mower- Conditioner

WEST BEND, Wis. — Gehl's new nine-foot sicklebar mower conditioner is built for fast cutting, fast drying, and worry-free performance.

The new model 2175 features a simple pivot-arm knife drive for high-speed cutting.

"The sickle drive is powered off the lower conditioner roll, so you get 'flywheel-type' momentum for extra cutting energy when you need it," said Jim Phillips, Gehl hay tool product manager. "The entire drive system consits of one gearbox, two belts and two chains. It's extremely simple for fewer adjustments and less maintenance costs."

Precision-made 109-inch, machined rubber intermeshing conditioning rolls gently crack stems for faster dry-down. According to Phillips, "The durable rolls are machined so exact dimensions can be maintained across the full width."

A single lever adjusts the forming chamber to create fluffy windrows or full-width swaths. A proven three-point flotation system responds quickly to ground variances to maintain an even cut.

THE CLAAS HARVESTER

MAXIMUM FEED QUALITY

To ensure maximum feed quality from maize it is vital to crack every kernel. Digestion of uncracked maize falls as the maize becomes drier. Independent trials have shown the Claas corn cracker to be close to 100% effective. From the cylinder the corn passes through the two large diameter rollers with saw tooth profiles. The rollers run at different speeds to intensify the grinding effect and open up each kernel. It is a fairly tough process so the latest generation of corn crackers take account of the wear involved on the rollers. Nothing can reduce the wear but Claas have cut the cost of repair by making the outer sleeve replaceable. The shaft, drive pulley and bearings can all be reused which cuts down repair bills dramatically. Adjusting the distance between the two rollers is accomplished by turning two handles, easily accessible behind the cab. In no time at all the degree of cracking can be matched to the ripeness of the crop.

RELIABILITY

The CLAAS Cutterbox is a unique balanced design using 2 knives in a V configuration. This forces the cutting action toward the center instead of the outside. This is the secret of their horsepower requirement and good quality of cut.

The New ROTOCUT SILAGE BALER
Cuts Your Crop As It Is Forced Through A Series Of Knives.

The Benefits:
- Even higher bale density
- Easier distribution of bale contents

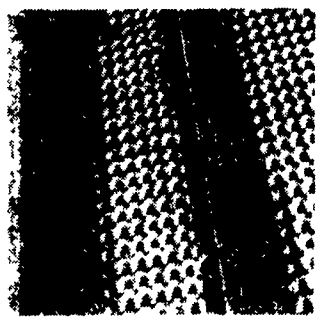
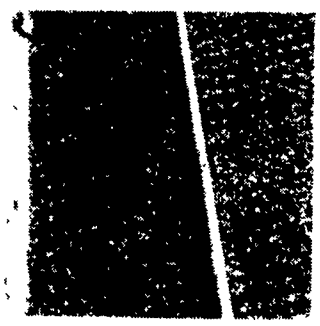
Hard to feed crops are aggressively fed right into this baler. Now you can cut and bale rye, barley and oats at boot stage. Bales fall apart - you can throw them down a hay hole and feed them with a fork.

MASSEY FERGUSON

COMBINING SLOPES — THE MF 3-D CLEANING SYSTEM



Normal cleaning across slopes



3-D in operation

With the MF 3-D system you can operate at the same speed on slopes as on flat land. Daily performance can be maintained.

The 3-D cleaning system provides dynamic slope compensation which means that the upper sieve moves sideways against the slope of the hill. The degree and direction of these movements depend on the inclination of the slope. Quick reaction and of course equal performance in any direction on slopes of up to 20%.

With the MF-3-D cleaning system, the crop is distributed evenly across the full width of the sieves, performance remains stable and output maintained.

MODEL 120 CONVEY-N-FEED® END CHARGE FEEDER

Deep-trough, air borne 14 in. belt carries 27% more feed than a flat 16 in. belt. 105% more than a flat 12 in. belt. Also, because 46% of the belt rides over thin air - instead of sliding on metal surface there's less drag. Requires less HP, less energy, reduces wear on the belt. Belt returns conditions for reduced friction.

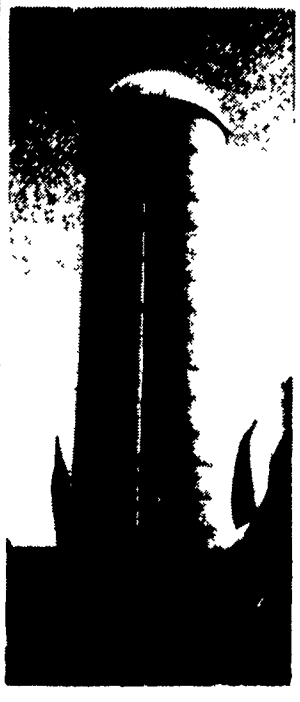
PLAN NOW FOR 1994!



"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

When Planning Your Forage Programs, Remember That Your Main Objective Is To Store The Plant And Remove It From Storage In As Good Condition As Possible. The Upright Silo Has Never Been Equalled In Its Ability To Do This.

On Most Dairy Farms, Forage Quality Is The Single Most Important Factor Relating To Profit.

Poured Concrete Silos Consistently Out-Perform All Other Methods Of Storing And Preserving The Total Digestible Nutrients In Forage Crops.

"Nobody Protects Forage Quality Like We Do...Nobody!"

No Rebuilt Silos!
No Preowned Silos!

New Ultimate EXT.™ The Breakthrough Diet That Helps Her Add Several Pounds A Day.

When it comes to weight control and eating, dairy cows aren't like most people. A successful cow's diet should produce more pounds, not less, and her body weight needs to stay up after freshening.

Our new dairy feed works that way: introducing Ultimate EXT™ from Purina® Ultimate EXT helps cows produce more milk: an average of five more pounds a day in over 14,000 cows. By helping cows reduce body weight loss after calving, Ultimate EXT also improves body condition which can enhance breeding efficiency.

FIELD PRODUCTION RESPONSE

Number of Herds	244
Number of Cows	16,950
Beginning Production	64.3 Lbs/day
Ending Production	69.3 Lbs/day
Milk Response	+5.0 Lbs/day
Change in Body Condition	+.14 Pts.

To put more weight on your bottom line, ask us about new Ultimate EXT. It turns good cows into great ones.
